Philippines—Mexico
It Can Be Done
If Gold Dust Fell?
Ramadan's Sad End
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

What is the news?

Here is part of it; take your pick.

General Wood, sent to the Philippines by the President, is against Filipinos' independence. So is everybody else with common sense, including the Filipinos. Give the Filipinos independence, and soon the Japanese will take them and start fortifying the islands. That would mean war with Japan, unnecessary expense and trouble for the United States.

Mexico declines Secretary Hughes' offer of recognition on condition that Mexico should forego confiscating property of Americans. President Obregon says it would not be constitutional for Mexico to do what Hughes asks. It must be an interesting constitution that forbids the Mexicans to refrain from stealing the property of American citizens. Perhaps, before Mr. Harding goes out of office, something will happen to that constitution.

Henry Ford owns a small railroad in connection with his factory. It will carry supplies for his factories—lumber, iron, coal—and also carry milk and crops for the farmers. The lowest wage on the road will be $6 a day. Some other "privately owned" railroads will wonder how that is possible. It is not difficult when you build the road for cash, don't issue any millions in watered stock or bonds, and when you don't buy your railroad supplies from any amiable "Diamond Jim" who introduces you to charming ladies of the chorus and in return gets twice the usual price for car wheels.

At far-off Dawson a rain of yellow dust has fallen on the ground. Chemists are analyzing it. It may be sulphur that clouds and wind "picked up from some volcano in the unexplored north. It may be pollen from distant pine trees, carried to Dawson." It isn't gold, which is the important thing. If it were gold, if from interstellar space a rain of gold dust should begin settling on earth, how industriously brooms and shovels would be used, and how soon you would read, as financiers and governments hastily rearranged their ideas on money, "gold now cheaper than copper."

Our Turkish friends, including the sultan, are just finishing Ramadan, the fast of thirty days, which comes in the ninth month, and are starting the three days' feast that follows the solemn period.

The Sultan says it is a sad festival, all things going wrong. The Allies say the same, for the irresistible Bolsheviki having organized all-Mohammedan troops, are sending them into Turkey and the Turks admit them.

It would surprise western Europe if, some fine day, it should find Mr. Trotsky, with his military suit and gaiters, in possession of Constantinople, back door of the Mediterranean.

The stock market, once more, imitates Humpty-Dumpty and his great fall. A New York Stock Exchange seat sold for $84,000 yesterday, very cheap. Perhaps it can soon get his money back by betting that the stock of the small steel companies will go lower.

Two freight ships are limping into port, badly damaged by bumping icebergs. The fields of ice in the North Atlantic are larger and more dangerous than ever since 1912, when the Titanic went down. In a day that is coming men will control these ice fields, as a man now controls the snowdrift in his front yard. That surplus ice may be used to cool off the tropics and tropical heat to warm the North.

The United States is selling five hundred million dollars' worth of short notes, paying 5½ per cent. interest, and the notes are selling well. They ought to.

The government, which manufactures money, allows a banker to take its bonds and issue currency against the bonds. Why doesn't it issue its own notes up to a billion or so, as legal tender, and save the twenty-six million dollars a year "interest that the public will have to pay on the five hundred millions in notes? Something useful could be done with twenty-six millions a year—for the soldiers for instance.

VALUABLE JEWELRY STOLEN

Thieves Get Rich Booty in Physician's House, and Rob Three Others

Providence, June 10.—Jewelry valued at nearly $5,000 has been stolen from three Providence homes in robberies reported to the police today.

The biggest haul was secured at the home of Dr. Justin Boyce, No. 741 Westminster street.

In the list of stolen articles are one twin-diamond ring, each diamond weighing a carat and a half, with a total value of $2,000; one-carat solitaire valued at $350; a cluster ring of sapphires and diamonds, $100; another cluster, $250; a ruby, solitaire, and a ring set with sapphires and small stones, $100; a cluster of twenty small diamonds, $200, and a diamond sunburst with thirty small stones, $500.

The homes of Mrs. Mary J. Nichols at No. 11 Medway street, and Mrs. Mary Boyce at No. 111 Grove street were also entered by means of false keys, and much jewelry and trinkets taken.

Coolidge Can't Wear 'Stove Pipe' and Grin

Copyright Underwood & Underwood.

Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge at the reviewing stand in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, reviewing 40,000 Sunday school children, who paraded in celebration of Anniversary Day, one of Brooklyn's Principal holidays.

New York, June 10.—Vice-President Coolidge urged the old-time religion for the present day at a luncheon in Brooklyn which prefaced the opening of the exercises connected with the 105th anniversary of the Brooklyn Sunday School Union. "We must return to the religious activity that has brought man out of savagery to the present state of civilization," he said.

Letter Carrier Seizes Infant From Burning Crib in West End Tenement

By International News Service.

London, June 10.—Rear Admiral William S. Sims of the United States Navy, defied the American Navy Department to "muzzle" him.

The Admiral, who has been called upon by Secretary of the Navy Denby at Washington to explain his sensational "Jackass" speech on Tuesday, made another public address at a luncheon this afternoon at which he announced that he intends to keep on saying what he thinks.

Admiral Sims was the guest of the American Luncheon Club. Wilson Cross, who introduced the outspoken

Fifteen-months-old Stella Bochgick, locked into a room at No. 133 Brighton street, West End, was saved from death today when Letter Carrier Frank R. Enos of No. 65 School street, Charlestown, broke down the door and lifted the child from a burning baby carriage.

Enos extinguished the flames, which had spread to the child's clothing, and hurried with the baby to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where she was found to be in a serious condition from burns.

According to the police the infant with her three-year-old sister Mary, were left alone in the tenement on the second floor of the building on Brighton street. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bochnick went to their work as usual, locking the children in on their departure.

It is believed that Mary obtained matches and took them to the baby carriage, where she and her small sister began to play with them. One of the matches was ignited, firing the baby carriage. The smoke, rolling through an open window, was seen by Enos, who was passing, and who reached the child just as the flames were about to envelop her. After Stella was taken to the hospital, neighbors took charge of Mary, pending the return of her parents.

Prudential Will Pay Third on Savings

Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen has sent to the 3,100 depositors in the savings department of the Prudential Trust Company, the following notice:

"You are hereby notified that a dividend of 33 1-3 per cent. of your savings deposit is ready for payment. Before we can issue your check, certificate of proof of claim should be presented at Room 44, 10 Tremont street, Boston, Mass., so that endorsement of payment may be made. "Certificates may mailed or presented in person. Mailing is preferred. If your certificate of proof of claim is mailed, it should be accompanied by an addressed envelope, stamped for mail registration."

The amount of money to be paid out totals $291,000. It represents all the cash available.

ASSAILS DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Hurlburt Creates Sensation at Hearing Before Supreme Court Judges

Special Assistant Attorney-General Hurlburt electrified spectators at the preliminary Allen-Tufts hearing before the Supreme Court today by suddenly stopping a highly technical argument to hurl the following questions into the records:

"Did the people of Middlesex County, northern district, know, when they re-elected Mr. Tufts in 1918 that their district attorney had been in a combination with certain men to rob certain other men of $100,000?

"Did they know their district at-

SLASHES PLAYMATE WITH BIG KNIFE

Charles Nelson, eight years old of No. 21 Lamartine street, Hyde Park, slashed ten-year-old William Costello on the left arm with a butcher knife while the two were playing in the yard at that address, according to the police. Young Costello was taken to the City Hospital.

LIVED 3 WEEKS WITHOUT FOOD

Attleboro, June 10.—Found suffering from exhaustion, believed due to lack of food, Herbert S. Forman, sixty years old, was taken to the Sturdy Memorial Hospital. When he had partially recovered Forman told officials he had lived three weeks in the woods in Wrentham without food.

H. H. CHMIELINSKI IN ROXBURY COURT

Henry H. Chmielinski of Crownshield road, Brookline, the former president of the Hanover Trust Company, appeared in the Roxbury Court today on charges of violation of the automobile laws on Massachusetts avenue on June 1. The charges were filed.

240 REPORTED LOST ON LINER

London, June 10.—Two hundred and forty lives are reported to have been lost in the destruction of the passenger liner Boubouline by a mine, said a dispatch from Athens today.

The Boubouline was bound from Smyrna on the Anatolian (Turkish) coast when she struck the mine.

According to the report received at Athens, the ship foundered so quickly that only two persons were saved.

The Boubouline was sunk in the Aegean Sea. The Boubouline was a small ship of less than 1,500 tons and flew the Greek flag.

New York, June 10.—American relief workers may have perished in the sinking of the Boubouline. It was stated at the headquarters of the Near East Relief that relief workers may have been returning to Greece.

LYNN BANK TELLER ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Louis Bee, a teller in the City National Bank at Lynn, shot himself through the hand accidentally today. Several people in the bank at the time fled quickly to the street, believing that a holdup was taking place. Bee was treated by Dr. S. H. Davis, and was then removed to his home, No. 75 Lincoln avenue, Saugus. Bee was removing what he believed to be an empty revolver from a drawer in order to load it. It proved to have one cartridge in it.

FLYING FIELD FOR SQUANTUM URGED

A recommendation that the U. S. government at once proceed to take over the aviation field at Squantum, for a permanent flying field, was urged before the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, when Commander Frank Rorrchach, U. S. N., addressed that body. "Squantum is the ideal spot on the Atlantic coast for an aviation field," said the Commander, who has recently taken command of the submarine destroyer base, at Quincy.

GENERAL EDWARDS COMING JULY 1

Major-General Edwards will take charge of the First Corps Area, July 1, and spend three following days in the interests of the Y. D. reunion, which will start July 4. Major-General Shanks will leave for Camp Dix, N. J., June 30, to take command of a division.

ANOTHER PUBLIC WALK IN ARBORETUM

Flowers are in full bloom at the Arnold Arboretum in Jamaica Plain, and flower lovers are invited to enjoy the display. Professor J. G. Jack of the Arboretum staff will conduct a public walk through the gardens Saturday afternoon, starting from the Forest Hills gate at 3.30 o'clock.

MOTHER OF FIVE FAINTS IN FIRE

Guides Children to Safety After Being Roused by One of Sons

Mrs. Emma McNamara swooned during a fire in her tenement on the second floor of the building at No. 62 Shawmut avenue, South End, today, striking her head on the stove and inflicting a deep wound.

Shaken by one of her five young boys, Mrs. McNamara quickly recovered and, with blood streaming down her face, guided the youngsters through the smoke-filled corridor and staircase to the outer air.

The fire started in a closet off the kitchen and caused $300 damage.

The firemen were delayed in arriving because the person who pulled in the alarm failed to stand by the box, and it was several minutes before the base was located.

Fast work after their arrival prevented more serious damages.

JEAN HENDERSON IS UNDER ARREST

Jean Henderson of Queensberry street, Back Bay, who defaulted bonds of $3,000 a year ago under which she was held on a charge of forgery, was arrested by operatives of the National Pinkerton Agency in Portland, Me. The young woman, who is twenty-four years old and quite pretty attractive, was charged with passing a number of worthless checks on Boston stores.

$110,000 BAIL PUT UP FOR SOLLEY

George W. Solley came into the Superior Criminal Court before Judge Keating and relieved his surety, Samuel W. Johnson, a real estate dealer in South Boston, who went Solley's bond for $10,000. In place of Johnson, Demarest Lloyd qualified in the sum of $100,000 and Arthur W. Joslin in $10,000. The case of Solley is assigned for sentence on Tuesday next.

WOMAN TELLS OF KILLING

Witness to Braintree Killings Fails to Identify Defendants

Another eyewitness of the shooting of Paymaster Frederick A. Parmenter and his guard, Alessandro Berardelli, at South Braintree fifteen months ago, during a payroll hold-up, described the double murder today in Dedham at the trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

The witness, Mrs. Annie Nichols, who viewed the shooting from her home off Pearl street, was not asked to identify either of the defendants as the gunmen she saw. Neither was she asked to describe the bandits.

Under cross-examination she said she made no pretence of trying to identify the defendants as the gunmen she saw.

From her kitchen window, 200 feet from the scene, she first saw the paymaster and his guard go down Pearl street with their heavy money boxes. After sitting down she heard shots fired and then went on the porch.

"When I looked out of the window

WALSH DEMANDS PUBLIC HEARING

James J. Walsh, Park Department inspector, under suspension for alleged neglect of duty in connection with the fence erected around baseball diamonds on Boston Common, today demanded a public hearing. The Park Department will consider this request next Monday at a meeting when the entire controversy will be gone into. Deputy Park Commissioner William P. Long takes issue with T. A. Snow of the W. A. Snow Iron Works, Inc. Mr. Snow declared the specifications for building the fence were very vague in places, but Mr. Long stated that they were absolutely clear.

G. Waffe Continues to Hint at a Christmas Tree in June; What Is This?

Dear Editor:

It appears to have got so that if an honest man comes along with a fair proposition to put people in the way of money they run away from him.

Or call a policeman.

Take my case.

I tell you that Ten Thousand Dollars is about to be given away in this town, free. Given away! Absolutely free!

You are skeptical about it. You are a man of the world, a broad-minded person of some intelligence, or you wouldn't be where you are. But do you believe it?

You did not call me a liar, but I judge from the headlines you put on my little piece in yesterday's paper that you think I am either funning or bughouse.

You are not going to discourage me, Mr. Editor! Right here in the Summer season, with half the folks leaving town for the hot spell and the other half wondering where the coal is coming for the cold spell, I announce that Ten Thousand Dollars is about to be given away free.

No contest! No puzzle! No selling anything or buying anything. No drive. Just a plain old-fashioned Christmas tree for everybody, in the glorious month of June.

But I won't bore you. Save a little room for me tomorrow. Thanks.

Yours for Free Money,
GREENBRIER WAFFE.

Boston, June 10, 1921.

WARNS THAT TICKS CAUSE PARALYSIS

"Look out for wood ticks in beds and other places around and in Summer cottages," is the advice given by Peter D. McCormack of Spokane, Wash., before the meeting in Convention Hall under the auspices of the American Medical Association when speaking on "Children's Diseases."

"These ticks will bring on paralysis known as respiratory paralysis," said the physician.

1,800 HAVERHILL CUTTERS QUIT WORK

Haverhill, June 10.—Eighteen hundred cutters affiliated with the Shoe Workers' Protective Union have voted not to cut any more shoes unless there is a price fixed on them. The union officials claim that the manufacturers have refused to make prices on new patterns and the cutters have decided not to put a knife into a shoe on new patterns. The manufacturers claim there is no basis upon which to establish new prices.

FEAR MISSING GIRL KIDNAPED

West Somerville Child Mysteriously Gone, Parents Have Been Divorced

Boston and Somerville police have been asked by Mr. and Mrs. Hudson M. Howe of No. 48A Day street, West Somerville, to aid them in a search for their nine-year-old granddaughter, Esther, who disappeared last Monday.

The grandparents believe that the child was kidnaped and that she is now being held in New Hampshire.

Esther, who was legally adopted by the Howes in 1917, has been attending St. John's Episcopal School in Arlington for the last five years. Monday she left the school to visit a nearby public schoolhouse and has not been heard of since.

The child's parents were divorced sometime ago, and it was learned that the mother was married last Saturday to John H. Shuttleworth, formerly of Dorchester, and now living in Manchester, N. H.

CAMBRIDGE BOY KILLED BY AUTO

Wealthy Manufacturer Faints as Victim's Body Is Taken From Beneath Car

Joseph Pirrone, five years old of No. 366 Windsor street, Cambridge, was knocked down and killed today near his home by an automobile owned by J. Berwick Hogg of Marion, Pa., a wealthy Philadelphia corset manufacturer.

Alexander Vance of Cynwyd, Pa., chauffeur for Mr. Hogg, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and held in $500 for a hearing next Thursday. His employer fainted when the child's body was dragged from under the big car by William T. Richardson of No. 316 Windsor street. The boy was rushed to the Cambridge Relief Hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival.

Haynes, Drys' Friend, Succeeds Kramer

Washington, June 10.—Appointment of Major Roy Haynes of Hillsboro, O., as prohibition commissioner, to succeed John C. Kramer, was announced at the White House today. Haynes is a newspaper editor and had the strong endorsement of the Anti-Saloon League and Senator Frank Willis of Ohio. For some time Haynes served as head of the Miami Military Institute at Germantown, O., where he gained the title of major. He has been prominently identified with the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Anti-Saloon League. In 1912 he was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress.

POLICE CLUBBER SAFE IN ARMY

Pelletier Says That He Filed Buckley's Case Because of Enlistment

The complaint against former Patrolman Richard F. Buckley, who brutally clubbed Peter F. Day, seventeen-year-old Charlestown school boy, in City square in December last, was died because of the former's resignation and enlistment in the United States army, according to a statement by District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, explaining his disposition of the case.

Filing of the case was done by Pelletier on May 17 last.

Buckley had appealed to the Superior Court from a sentence of six months imposed by Judge Brown in Charlestown District Court after a protracted hearing during which the police department made extraordinary efforts to save the convicted policeman.

2 OTHERS UP TODAY.

Two other policemen face cases on similar charges in the courts today. A warrant is to be asked for the arrest of Patrolman O'Manion of the South Boston Station for using unnecessary violence in arresting Michael McLaughlin, a one-armed war veteran, who was accepted for service with his disability, for alleged drunkenness.

McLaughlin, who lives at No. 92 C street, South Boston, suffered a broken nose and injuries to the head.

The Suffolk County Grand Jury is today expected to hear the case of Patrolman Louis Steinhouser of the City Hall Station, who, on April 24, shot and killed Louis Quitt of No. 11 Klinefelter road, Somerville, on Court street. Steinhouser had arrested Quitt as a bootlegger. A warrant for murder was denied and one for manslaughter granted.

OTHER RECENT ASSAULTS.

Other recent assaults in which Boston policemen were involved follow:

June 8, 1921—Patrolmen Patrick F. Hurley, of Charlestown, clubbed William Holder, of Charlestown, Relief Hospital.

June 8, 1921—Patrolmen Thomas Vasner, Jr., of Station 5, clubbed William Jones, seventy years old, to Blackstone Park, Lost Hospital.

May 6, 1921—Patrolman Philip E. Sullivan, Station 5, charged with clubbing Lemuel Connor, of No. 42 Burns street. Hearing on warrant continued.

May 20, 1921—Patrolman Lawrence Grant, of Station 5, charged with clubbing Joseph Lyons, No. 21 Dundee street, Dorchester; Daniel Lyons, No. 21 Dundee street, Dorchester, and Thomas E. Carey, No. 140 Wendell street, Dorchester.

April 27, 1921—Police Officer Harold R. Tyne shot and killed Louis Chiaramonte, sixty-two years old, in Saratoga street, East Boston, on Saratoga street. Court inquest warrant.

April 27, 1921—Traffic Officer George F. Allen, Station 5, charged with clubbing and severely beating Elmer Wells, 23 Cowdrey avenue, Cambridge, at Elm street, West Somerville.

April 26, 1921—Harold M. Ryan, patrolman, Charlestown, charged with assault and battery on Charlestown police officers in Charlestown police station.

March 28, 1920—Patrolman William [illegible]

VICTIM

Peter F. Day, English High School boy, who was clubbed by former Patrolman Buckley of Charlestown, for which the latter gained immunity by enlisting in the army.

Taylor of the Dudley Street Station, shot in the leg by Patrolman Quimley Mosher of the Brighton Complaint Station.

April 3, 1920—Joseph Sarcione of Dorchester, aged 18, was shot and killed by Edward Sullivan, aged 19, Allston street, Dorchester, and by Patrolman Francis Ryan, aged 23, Elliot of the East Dedham Street Station, following a fight in which Sullivan had shot and killed David "Beano" Rosen, well-known South End character.

May 4, 1920—Patrolman Frank Mullen of Station 4 shot and killed William Mullen, brother of Patrolman Mullen, of Station 4, following a fight in which Mullen had struck Officer Mullen with a blackjack. Mullen was shot in the back of the head.

May 8, 1920—Patrolman Cunningham, of No. 18 Monument avenue, Charlestown, struck Joseph Connor, aged 17, of Connor road, Chelsea, with brutality associated with [illegible] Connor's arrest. Connor was charged with assault and battery on the police officer, and sustained a small wound.

August 2, 1920—Patrolman Joseph Stanton of Station 4 brutally assaulted him and then arrested him for drunkenness.

December 20, 1919—James A. McDonald was shot and killed by Patrolman Thomas F. Hayes of Station 5, Boston, Patrolman Hayes claiming that McDonald, a discharged soldier, attempted to shoot O'Connell, who had fired through the door.

BATHER SAVED BY HARVARD STUDENT

John Marlio, fourteen years old, of No. 418 Portland street, Cambridge, while swimming in the Charles River in mid-stream opposite the Weld boathouse, near the Lars Anderson bridge, was seized with cramps and sank shouting for help. J. D. Wolfe, a Harvard freshman, standing in front of the Weld boathouse, heard the cry and plunging into the stream with his clothes on, swam to the drowning boy and rescued him.

Westfield, June 10.—Prosecution of young men callers on girls in the Eastmost street section of the city who race to and from their nightly trysts on motorcycles is threatened unless these same young men cut out opening the "cut-outs" on their machines on their homeward jaunts in the wee small hours. Residents of the section have entered protest with the city officials.

SIMS WILL SAY WHAT HE THINKS

Refuses to Be Muzzled, Declaring "Let Them Make the Best of It"

American naval officer, referred to him in these words:

"Every honest-thinking, true-blooded American will stand by what Admiral Sims said on Tuesday."

The cheers which greeted the admiral lasted for a minute and a half.

"I have attempted on all occasions to say what I wanted to say," declared Admiral Sims in addressing the gathering. "I have always told the truth as I understood it. I am afraid I told what I believe to be the truth the other day."

Laughter interrupted the speaker when Sims said he was "afraid he had come to excess in telling the truth at least in the minds of certain people." He continued:

"I am accused of being pro-British. I am pro-British. I am pro-French or pro-Italy or pro-anything that makes for the advancement of the world."

"What I said the other day is practically the same as has been said repeatedly upon American platforms.

"I intend to keep on doing the same thing. If that is un-American let them make the best of it."

Before the luncheon the Admiral admitted that he had received a cable gram from Secretary Denby demanding an explanation of his previous speech when he refused to "accept resolutions of sympathy for the Sims Fein in America" and charged the Sinn Fein with being responsible for the loss of American lives in the war.

Admiral Sims pleaded for unity of the English speaking races. He said high tribute to the "personal unity" in England. He caused another laugh when he said he did not expect to live long enough to see the day when he would visit England and find it impossible to get a drink here.

Sims Should Have Been Discharged--Bryan

By International News Service.

Copyright, 1921, by the International News Service.

Washington, June 10.—William Jennings Bryan declared today in a message to the International News Service that Rear Admiral Sims should have been discharged from the navy long ago for his unpatriotic utterances.

Telegraphing from his home at Miami, Fla., Bryan said:

"I think Admiral Sims should have been discharged from the navy under the last (Wilson) administration when he revealed confidential communications.

"The Republicans sustained him then and they will not have the responsibility of dealing with his latest utterances.

"Age does not improve him. His indiscretions increase with tolerance."

The following is a comparison of typical lots sold here last year during the week ending June 8th, with the prices this year, this week, for practically the same article:

	1920	1921
June 1st—women's navy blue suits	$26.00	$9.00
June 2nd—women's low shoes	3.95	1.35
women's silk petticoats	3.85	2.00
June 3rd—women's georgette dresses	17.75	10.90
June 4th—women's silk lined coats or wraps	24.00	5.95
June 6th—men's silk shirts, seconds	4.85	2.95
June 7th—girls' voile dresses	3.90	1.95
women's jersey suits	18.00	5.95
	$102.30	$40.05

Our figures show that folks are interested in this because they are buying three times as many garments on the average this year as compared to the same period last year.

KABER KILLED BY SPANISH SPIRITUALIST, WIFE DECLARES

STABBING FOLLOWED QUARREL

Mrs. Kaber Says She Employed Spiritualist to "Frighten" Her Husband

By International News Service.

New York, June 10—Breaking under a gruelling examination of almost twelve hours, Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, now on her way with her nineteen-year-old daughter, Marian McArdle, to Cleveland, told the New York police early today that Daniel Kaber, her wealthy husband, was stabbed to death by a Spanish spiritualist working in her employ.

"I asked a Spanish spiritualist and his wife to go to my husband and through the aid of the spirits ask him to stop treating me so inhumanly.

"My husband did not believe in spirits and a quarrel followed, during which he was stabbed," she is quoted as having said.

These vital admissions were made by Mrs. Kaber early today to Captain Arthur Schoef of the Homicide Bureau, and Chief of Police Peter Christensen, of Cedarwood, O., it is learned from Chief Christensen today.

They constitute the most material evidence the prosecution has yet obtained against Mrs. Kaber, it is said. She and her daughter and her mother, Mrs. Mary Bickel, are under indictment charged with complicity in the slaying of Kaber.

After her husband had been killed, the southmayer came to her for money which she refused to pay him, it is said Mrs. Kaber told the police.

She denied she had employed the Spaniard to kill her husband, insisting that she had merely retained him and his wife to "frighten" Kaber into forsaking her quite wholly.

PLEA MISCARRIED.

The scheme was, Mrs. Kaber told Chief Christensen, to have the shirtwaist enter her husband's bedroom while Kaber was asleep, awaken him suddenly and frighten him so he would promise to write a love letter toward his wife.

"The knife," she said was to "shake a little civility into him."

On second thought, however, Mrs. Kaber says she had not told the plan and had asked the spiritualist to abandon it, but the latter carried it out, nevertheless. He did so, Mrs. Kaber said told him to do she said.

Kaber, it is said, awoke suddenly from his slumber and seeing a stranger bending over his bed, grabbed him and the struggle was ended by the intruder.

Fifth Woman Suspect Named in Kaber Case

By International News Service.

Cleveland, June 10.—A fifth woman suspect, named in the statement made by Mrs. Catherine Eva Kaber in New York, was arrested at her home in Cleveland today. The identity of the one who is said to have been named as one who aided Mrs. Kaber in the death plot.

Protector E. C. Stanton announced that she would be held in solitary confinement pending the arrival of Mrs. Kaber and her daughter from New York.

Arrest of a second male suspect in the murder mystery is expected to take place some time today.

10,000 SCHOOL CADETS MARCH

Boys Led by Commerce Regiments Salute Governor Cox and Mayor Peters

Promptly at 8:30 o'clock today, Major-General White of the Dorchester High School gave the command that started approximately 10,000 Boston School Cadets on their annual parade.

The cadets saluted both Governor Cox and Mayor Peters.

Thousands of men, women and children, waving pennants of the respective schools lined the route of march, which included Clarendon street, Columbus avenue, Park square, Boylston street, Tremont street, Bromfield street Washington street, School street, Beacon street and the Boston Common.

The Seventh and Eighth Regiments, composed of students of the High School of Commerce, had the honor of being first in line.

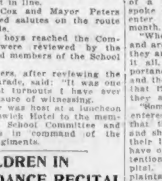
Governor Cox and Mayor Peters were tendered salutes on the route of the parade.

When the boys reached the Common they were reviewed by the chairman and members of the School Committee.

Mayor Peters, after reviewing the schoolboy parade, said: "It was one of the finest turnouts I have ever had the pleasure of witnessing.

The major was host at a luncheon in the Brunswick Hotel to the members of the School Committee and the colonels in command of the schoolboy regiments.

70 CHILDREN IN DANCE RECITAL



Over seventy children, pupils of Miss Margaret Ronan, will give a dancing recital this evening at Ronan Memorial Hall, Dorchester. The children will present many novelties, among them a moon dance, a bathing dance, a barrel sketch, a whirlwind and a doll sketch. Majorie Davis will appear as the Moon; the Misses Eileen and Ruth Coughlin, six and eight years old, as the Moonbeams; Virginia Weddleton, as the Splash-Me Doll; Georgia Lyons as the Dying Swan, Bertha Murray as the Fortune Teller, Eleanor FitsPatrick as the Chicken and

"If a man cannot live by bread alone, it is doubtless equally true that he cannot live by Boston baked beans alone."

This statement was made before one of the sectional meetings of the American Medical Association by Dr. George Simmons of Chicago, editor of the medical journal of that organization.

"They do not have a complete protein and other wholesome food ought," he said.

"We need not give up the cherished beans, but we must eat them with some other food. Beans alone will not do."

"Former service men of the World War guering from nervous diseases do not want to get well. They have got a soft job of it," said Dr. C. B. Woodson of Missouri before the section meeting on nervous and mental diseases in Paul Revere Hall.

"In the first place, the government made a blunder in allowing these men to enter the service during the war. Why, some of them ran down my way had the ancestral taint of mental troubles for generations. I tell you that many of them in hospitals at this present time do not want to get well. They know enough about what hospitals are doing, and if they cannot join some society, why they appeal to the Red Cross Society and work it that way."

RAPS EX-SERVICE MEN.

Dr. George H. Benton, in charge of a hospital at Waukesha, Wis., spoke of men who were anxious to enter hospitals and draw $30 a month. He said:

"When they get into the hospital and are put to any sort of treatment they are confident that they know it all, overestimate their own importance, call the food unpalatable, and then write in their Congressman that they can't stand conditions as they are.

"Some of the foreigners who have entered the service are convinced that the United States is wealthy and should support them the rest of their lives, when not afraid of them have only been two months in detention camp and the rest in a hospital. Then we hear of many complaints made by these people to other doctors. Congress has no idea of the real facts in these cases.

"They are stimulated by the desire to get everything and tell politicians after a while that they are abused."

Other doctors claimed former service men deceived physicians who were not expert in their examination of mental diseases.

8,500 REGISTERED.

There were registered at the convention of the American Medical Association in Mechanics' Building during the three-days' sessions of that body, 8,500 members.

Tufts is the largest record of any convention, with the exception of the one at Chicago.

Dr. Elizabeth Bass of Tulane University, New Orleans, was elected president of the Medical Women's National Association at their meeting in the rooms of the New England Women's Club. The following were elected vice-presidents: Dr. Grace Kimball of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Dr. Louise Hurrell of Rochester, N. Y., and Dr. Helena Ratterman of Cincinnati. Dr. L. Rosa H. Gantt of Spartansburg, S. C., was elected recording secretary and Dr. Isabel Thompson Smart of New York corresponding secretary.

Laborers in Brockton Quit Over Pay Cut

Brockton, June 10.—Sixty-five Brockton city laborers are on strike as a result of the Supreme court injunction restraining the city of Brockton from paying more than $3.50 per day.

The men walked out when they received their pay envelopes, although they had been told that they would receive pay at that rate. They have been receiving pay at the rate of sixty-eight cents an hour.

MORE WAYWARD COUNTRY GIRLS

Young Woman of City Should Be Sister's Keeper, Says Social Worker

By HAZEL CANNING.

"Oh, it's just another girl gone wrong."

And when this answer is given, coldly, statistically, as a part of the routine business of the courthouse—it's said three times out of four, of the little girl from the country.

Mrs. Nellie M. Duncan of the Volunteers of America, lifelong worker with girls, so sizes up the situation in Boston.

"The girl who becomes what we call the wayward girl of the city is three times out of four the little girl who was brought up in the country," said Mrs. Duncan.

CITY GIRL SAFER.

"The city girl, even the city girl who was brought up on city streets unprotected, unchaperoned, unwatched, is far less likely to get into difficulties than the innocent, trusting, fresh-as-a-rose little girl from the outlying districts."

Mrs. Duncan then told the story which led to the first sentence, quoted above—"it's just another girl gone wrong."

"The remark was made," said she, "when a girl's crying was heard by a business man passing through the court house. He inquired—and got the answer in tones of everyday business callousness.

SENDS HER DOWNWARD.

"Now, it's just such routine expectancy that the little country girl is likely to go wrong, which sends her on her downward path. But it's the business of the experienced young business woman of the city to keep these young country girls right.

"Today, more than ever in the world before, we are our little sister's keeper.

"That is our modern responsibility, to the end that, far less frequently, the answer will go forth, after the cry is heard, 'Oh, it's just another girl gone wrong!'"

Sudden Resolve Changed Mary Garden's Life

The fourth installment of Mary Garden's picture of her own life as sketched by the famous opera singer herself for the readers of the Hearst newspapers is given below:

"Mme. Marchesi!

"There was a name to conjure with in the music world . . . but it wasn't great enough to lead little Mary Garden to her studio the minute she set foot in Paris.

"No, indeed. I said, 'Mary Garden, she may be the greatest teacher in the world . . . but is she exactly the teacher you need?'

"You see, even at that tender age, I had very positive views about things. I always thought for myself, and I could not be influenced against my own judgment.

'Therefore when I arrived in Paris I didn't go direct to Mme. Marchesi's studio. . . . I said, "I'll look around; maybe I can find some one who will do me more good.'

"And right there I made a wondrously wise decision for a girl of my years (I was less than twenty). I made up my mind not to study at all until I found the teacher I felt I needed.

"With Mrs. Duff I went from studio to studio, until finally I wound up with Mme. Marchesi. She convinced me that she could give me exactly the training I required, and so I began my lessons.

Singing Teacher Fails to Recognize Pupil

"I studied hard for two months, then went away for a little vacation. When I returned, I went directly to her studio, when, behold, she didn't recognize me!

"Think of it! She was so old she did not recognize a pupil who had been gone but a few days. I was shocked, and instantly decided that if she could not remember me surely she could not teach me.

"I went back to my rooms, and, wishing to be polite, wrote her a simple little note saying that I did not find in her studio exactly what I wanted.

Enraged by Letter From Mme. Marchesi

"That did sting when me in answer to that a note I still have . . . and which, translated, runs something like this:

"'Miss Mary Garden: The rolling stone gathers no moss. Don't holler until you get out of the woods!'

"That letter enraged me, and to this day I get full of fury whenever I think of it.

"However, it did not make me regret my decision and so I went to Trabadello, a well-known music master . . . in whom I found everything I wanted in a teacher. After two years' study with him I made my debut . . . and right here I want to say that the girl who is not ready to do something in two and a half years . . . will never do anything in three years.

Three Years' Study Enough for Anyone

"When a girl comes to have me hear her sing, I ask:

"'How long have you been studying?' If she says, 'seven years, ten years, five years,' or any time more than three years . . .

"'No use . . . you'll never do anything.'

"That is not snap judgment . . . nor sweeping condemnation . . . but absolute fact. . . . Those people who have spent years studying and no time doing . . . belong to the always going-to-do-something class . . . and they never get anywhere.

"So remember, if your daughter is spending years of her time learning to show for it, and you are giving her the money to do it with . . . you are doing yourself and her an injustice. She will never amount to anything, and you are wasting your money and her time.

"In the two years I was with Trabadello, I learned more French literature and education in the French classics and did my voice tutoring.

Diva Never Studied Acting in Her Life

"Acting? Why, I never in my life studied acting. I study my characters, my emotions . . . then when I am on the stage I AM THAIS, LOUISE, MELISANDE, or whoever it may be . . . but I do not act her . . . I live her!

"After two years in Paris, I began to grow restless. I began to want to do things, and I chafed impatiently because Trabadello had been unable to get me a hearing. That was a very difficult thing to do, but it did not make it any easier for me to wait for it.

"Difficulties, or obstacles, or explanations never entered into my calculations . . . I thought only of the thing I wanted . . . and thought and thought and thought . . . until I got it.

Changed the Entire Current of Career

"Then came a day when I determined to get myself a hearing. Instead of going on with my practice I put on my hat and went out for a walk!

"I walked along aimlessly . . . as to direction . . . but completely absorbed in thought.

"Yes, I must have a hearing, I said to myself. I must do something this very minute to see that I get it. With that thought I turned sharply into the Bois, and by the violence of that very determination to do something DEFINITE—AT ONCE—I believe I changed the entire current of my life."

WAS 'ROBBED,' HINTS JOYCE

Deeded $250,000 Residence to Brother to Keep It From Peggy's Hands

Chicago, June 10.—James Stanley Joyce, lumber prince, heard himself ridiculed and denounced when he appeared in court to fight the petition of his pretty wife, Peggy, for $10,000 a month alimony and $100,000 solicitor's fees.

He was on the stand a part of the time. He told Judge Joseph Sabath that his wife made had tried to rob him of his property. He also said he had changed his life insurance policies so that she could not get the $400,000 in case of his death.

There was little said about her costly diamonds and motors. Joyce testified solely about his fortune, it being the object of the hearing to determine whether his purse can can stand the strain of Peggy's demand her?

At one point he hinted that Peggy was a robber. He was asked why he had deeded their $250,000 residence at Miami to his brother.

"I didn't want to be robbed by her any more," Joyce answered.

Attorney Kirkland introduced an affidavit from Evan Spaulding of New York in which he denies that he was ever intimate with Peggy, as charged in Joyce's divorce suit.

RUSSIA OFFERS BASES TO U. S.

Two Bays on Siberian Coast for Navy Uses Are Proffered Through Vanderlip

By International News Service.

Copyright, 1921, by the International News Service.

London, June 10.—Two naval bases on the Siberian coast have been offered in perpetuity to America by the Moscow Soviet, on condition that the United States open full commercial relations with Soviet Russia.

This important offer was revealed today by Washington D. Vanderlip of Los Angeles, Cal., head of the American syndicate which has secured rich commercial concessions in Russia.

Mr. Vanderlip has just returned from Russia, where the final negotiations were concluded.

The agreement between Mr. Vanderlip and the Moscow government, in which the Soviet offers the two naval bases to America, is already in the hands of Senator Lodge at Washington. One of the harbors is at Avatcha Bay, on the southeastern coast of Kamchatka. The other is near Vladivostok.

FOR AIRPLANE BASE.

Vanderlip pointed out that a powerful airplane base could be constructed at the southern port (near Vladivostok), which is only about three hours from the Japanese coast by air.

The details of the offer were in part set forth by Mr. Vanderlip as follows:

"We have obtained from the present Russian government in connection with the concession of 40,000 square miles in Kamchatka a concession for two naval bases on the Russian Pacific coast, to be held in perpetuity by the United States of America. One is at Avatcha Bay.

"It is a deep water harbor sufficiently large to float the biggest navy in the world. The harbor is landlocked with cliffs. The natural protections make it stronger even than Gibraltar. We could make it the strongest naval base in the world. The second base—also a bay—is near Vladivostok (the eastern terminus of the trans-Siberian railway.

LODGE HAS AGREEMENT.

"Our agreement, which includes these rights, is in the hands of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. They are conditional only upon the reopening of trade by the United States with Russia. While the Kamchatka commercial concession is limited to sixty years of life, these bases would be ceded to the United States for all time."

Avatcha Bay is a little more than one thousand miles north of Yezo, the northernmost island of the Japanese Empire. It lies at the extreme part of the North Pacific Ocean and the Sea of Okhotsk.

Vladivostok is about 630 miles west of Japan. It lies between Amur and Golden Horn of the Japanese Sea, a branch of the Pacific. It is the most important city on the Siberian coast.

DENIES BELMONT GIRL ELOPED

Mrs. Mary Sullivan, mother of Margaret Sullivan, a Belmont telephone operator, who has been reported as eloping to New York with William H. Grant, a pre-war admirer, positively denied that her daughter had eloped or wed and declared that the girl will become the bride of Phillip R. O'Connor, Belmont wire chief, on next Sunday, as has been arranged. Parents of young Grant, too, deny the marriage.

ATTACKS GIRL'S TESTIMONY

Counsel for Vanzetti Tries to Break Down Miss Splaine's Identification

before the shooting I saw two men leaning against the fence near Rice & Hutchins' factory.

"When I looked again I saw Mr. Parmenter with hands raised, crossing the street toward an excavation where men were digging a cellar. As Parmenter crossed the street a shot was fired from a pile of bricks near the excavation. Then I saw the laborers rushing toward my home.

"After that I saw an auto going slowly up Pearl street and then I saw the bandits throw the money boxes into the automobile and go along. They got in the car, which did not stop. One of the bandits chased Parmenter across the street.

"Three men got into the car from the street as it climbed the hill toward the railroad crossing."

Attorney Moranarney, counsel for Vanzetti, made a vigorous effort in cross-examination today to break down the testimony of Miss Mary E. Splaine, bookkeeper at the Slater & Morrill Shoe Company, who positively identified Sacco as the man she saw leaving from the fleeing bandit car on the day of the murder.

She admitted never having seen the man before and that she was forty to fifty feet away when the car passed.

In re-direct examination she said she first identified Sacco when he entered the room in the Brockton police station. It was not until thirty minutes later that she was asked regarding his identity, she said.

Miss Splaine said she desired to change her testimony of yesterday when she denied saying in Quincy Court that she would not positively swear Sacco was the man.

Today she admitted she had said that in Quincy Court and in explanation said that from her continued observation of Sacco in Quincy Court and her reflection she became sure he was the man.

Under further examination of Mc-Arnarney she admitted that Sacco was brought into a room alone by a police officer at Brockton police station.

HUMANITY LOOKS TO OLD GLORY

Governor Cox Issues Proclamation for Observance of Flag Day

"Throughout the world a tired humanity looks to Old Glory as the emblem of its greatest hope," Governor Cox today declared in a proclamation calling for a general observance of Flag Day on June 14.

He says in part:

"Let us recall with gratitude the sacrifices that have been made for that flag, and the blessings we are permitted to enjoy under its protection.

"The flag stands today, as always, for equality of opportunity, for freedom, for justice and for righteousness. Throughout the world a tired humanity looks to Old Glory as the emblem of its greatest hope.

"Let us salute the flag with a pledge of fidelity and with a resolution to be its worthy defenders. Let us remember that as the flag has brought to us priceless privileges, so it has brought to us stern and serious obligations.

"In the measure we deserve the former we shall discharge the latter."

CALL LANDLORD ON SCREENS

Dorchester Man Summoned to Court for Failure to Provide Them

The first case to be tested in a Massachusetts court regarding the rights of tenants to have windows and doors properly screened will be heard in Roxbury next Tuesday as a result of a summons issued by Judge Palmer.

The summons was issued for the appearance of Charles Pechura, No. 251 Boston street, Dorchester, on complaint of tenants that he has refused to furnish screens.

Action was taken under authority furnished by Chapter 555, Acts of 1921, entitled "An Act to Penalize the Violation of Certain Rights of Tenants." This was an emergency measure passed by the Legislature last year to meet the fiesa situation arising from the action of profiteering landlords.

Pechura's property is a three-family house, in which the rents have been increased a number of times, according to Herbert E. Ellis of the City Rent and Housing Commission.

Last December Pechura appeared before the commission for increasing the rents more than the law allowed. Through the offices of Mr. Ellis an adjustment was effected, but the tenant who complained was given notice to vacate the following May.

Apparently this notice was rescinded as the same tenant accepted a further increase in April, but asked that screens be provided. On May 27 the tenant reported to Mr. Ellis that no screens had been forthcoming, and on June 1 the landlord admitted he had not provided them. On June 3 he was told by Mr. Ellis that court action might result, but failed to heed the warning.

According to Mr. Ellis many similar complaints have been received from tenants throughout the city, and Tuesday's proceedings will be watched with much interest as a result.

her at Windham, Me., in 1910 and at Hough's Neck.

Stella has never bothered to claim perous optometrist in Boston, claims her certificate from the court at Dedham, where it is still on file with the other divorce papers.

Although Moses, who is now a prosthat he gave his bride every comfort within his means, Mrs. Moses alleged in her libel that he failed to give her the proper support. Moses did not combat this charge nor the charge of cruel and abusive treatment, although he retained Attorney Julian C. Woodman of Boston as counsel. He says that he might have entered a cross libel charging his wife with desertion, as she left him without cause, and because of her alleged infatuation for a wealthy business man.

At the uncontested hearing in Dedham, Winston Kennedy, the seventeen-year-old brother of Stella Kennedy testified that he had heard screams coming from his sister's bedroom while he was a visitor at their cottage at Hough's Neck. A woman friend testified that Stella had shown her black and blue marks on different parts of her body for which she claims Moses had been responsible.

WOMAN BLAMES MOSES.

The woman friend, who testified at the divorce hearing and who requested that her name be omitted, told a Boston American reported today that Moses peddled eye-glasses and other knick-knacks through the rural sections of New England for some time before he established himself as an optometrist in Boston. She claimed his bride, Stella Kennedy, went with him and peddled extracts.

She said the girl told her that she bought her dresses and other necessities from these earnings. The woman witness also stated that Moses permitted his bride, then a very pretty girl in her teens, to visit all kinds of resorts in making sales. Moses denied this and reiterated that his wife's downfall was largely due to evil friends made while soliciting funds for the Consumptives' Home.

Moses was so indignant over his shattered romance that he tried to introduce a bill in the Legislature to compel the licensing of all young women who collected funds for charity. He also requested Mr. Hayes of the Boston Chamber of Commerce to investigate his wife, while she was making collections.

PROBE EXONERATED HER.

This inquiry centred chiefly in Lynn, where Stella Kennedy was canvassing the shoe factories. The investigation is reported to have disclosed nothing irregular in Stella Kennedy's accounts, but did reveal the fact, according to Moses, that she was allowed a commission of 25 cents on every dollar collected.

Moses and his wife's friends thought that this money turned Stella's head. He says that it gave her an opportunity to dress in a manner which attracted attention and aided her in making friends with prominent business men.

The woman friend previously mentioned said that Moses built his own cottage at Hough's Neck and that it was not completed when he brought his bride there. She said that entrance was gained over a plank and that the house was not properly furnished for a long time.

"I was at the death bed of Stella's mother," added this woman today. "Mrs. Kennedy was one of the noblest women and one of the best mothers that I have ever known.

MOTHER'S DYING WISH.

"She kept her children immaculate. She made all their dresses. When she died Stella carried on her duties as best she could, darning stockings, preparing meals, sweeping, ironing and dusting. It was arduous work and a terrible handicap for Stella. When Mrs. Kennedy died, Stella and the other children were at her bedside. Mrs. Kennedy took Stella's hand in her's and with effort said:

"Stella, I want you to be a good woman. I want you to make a name for yourself. Don't do anything that your mother would be ashamed of. Be a good girl to your sisters and brother.'

"Stella sobbingly replied that she would be a good girl. You can imagine how shocked I was to have read the headlines in the newspapers about Stella Kennedy being involved in that disgraceful affair at Mishawum Manor.

SISTERS WERE PRETTIER.

"Her father was a good man and had a good practice in Boston. He is now in England with his other children. The daughters, Ida, Gladys and Muriel are all highly educated and much prettier girls than Stella. They are thoroughly respectable, as are their kin on their mother's and father's sides. That was one of the saddest features, to think that poor little Stella, who always seemed so pleasant, willing and ambitious, and who at heart was a good girl, should be the one to bring all this disgrace on the family.

WARNED HER IN VAIN.

"Poor little Stella, her braids still hanging, had to face the drudgery of the kitchen when she often felt more like skipping rope or rolling hoop with the other children of the neighborhood. This drudgery imposed by a professional father, who was blind to Stella's needs, perhaps unthinkingly, had a deep effect in changing her life, in my opinion. Stella never should have been permitted to sell goods in certain resorts which she mentioned to me.

"I repeatedly cautioned her, but she always took it as a joke and replied that she was able to take care of herself. After her divorce, I saw her seldom. She would run in now and then, wearing beautiful furs and jewels, and tell me of trips which she had taken in the South, to Florida resorts and to points all over the West. I could see what these trips meant and I would purposely turn the subject because it cut me to the heart to think that Mrs. Kennedy's oldest daughter was drifting the wrong way.

WAS STILL LOVABLE.

"Poor little Stella! Even with all her finery and adventurous junkets she was still sweet and lovable. We talked of the old days, and tears would come to her eyes when memories were stirred. I judged that mention of family incidents caused this grief. Stella refrained from telling me why she cried and I never asked her."

"It seems like a dream to me when I read the papers. I could not sleep the first night thinking about it. I have had it constantly in mind. I wonder where poor Stella is now. I hope they don't arrest her. Do you think they will? Some of the charges are very grave. The poor child has been through a lot. What a comfort that her mother died before this disgrace."

SINKING VESSEL CALLS FOR AID

Fireroom of Charlot, Which Hit Iceberg, Flooded—Liner Races to Her

St. John's, N. F., June 10.—Wireless calls for assistance received today from the American freight steamer Charlot, which hit an iceberg, indicate that she is sinking.

The message said that the water had reached her engine room and she asked that the nearest steamer stand by to render aid in case she had to be abandoned.

The steamer Columbia is rushing to her assistance. The bow of the Charlot was stove in.

The Charlot crashed into the floating mountain of ice about 200 miles off the New Foundland coast. She sailed from Philadelphia and is bound for London and Hamburg, via St. John's, N. F.

The Charlot, 3,545 gross tons, is owned by the United States Shipping Board and operated by the Kerr Steamship Line. She sailed from Philadelphia May 28, and put into St. John's for engine repairs. She carried a crew of thirty-five and a general cargo.

The British steamer Seapool, which also struck a berg, has arrived here. She reports receiving the wireless from the Charlot when ninety-six miles east of this port. The Seapool's cargo was undamaged.

300 RESCUED IN HOSPITAL FIRE

Firemen Perform Prodigies of Valor in Infirmary Fire Near Providence

Providence, June 10.—Firemen of this city and Cranston, working with utmost speed and heroism, succeeded in carrying about 300 women and children, many of them dead weights, on account of their crippled conditions, from their beds in the state infirmary at Howard, when a fire which did $50,000 damage before it was controlled threatened to destroy the entire building.

The fire fighters fought their way through smoke filled corridors to the bedsides of the patients and carried them to the lawn below. Several of them were overcome by the dense smoke but not before all the inmates were removed without loss of life or serious consequences.

The women and children after being safely carried to the lawn of the institution were later temporarily cared for in other buildings.

The blaze, which started in a shed in the rear of the infirmary, was discovered by Albert H. Harrison, an attendant in the children's ward. While he was attempting to put out the fire with an extinguisher an explosion occurred, throwing him out of the building. Before he could make another attempt to check the blaze the infirmary was a mass of flames.

MISS ROTOLI IS 'ADVENTURESS'

Boston Actress in "The Right Girl" Does Not Like the Word "Vamp"

By FRED J. McISAAC,
Dramatic Editor.

"Please don't call me a vamp," said Francesca Rotoli, who plays the alluring Spanish lady in "The Right Girl."

"This creature, called a vampire since Kipling wrote his poem and Theda Bara broke into the movies, has always been an important member of every drama from the time of Shakespeare down. She used to be known as 'adventuress' and I like the word very much more."

"Then you don't think the movies created a new type of female known as the vampire?"

"Good gracious, Cleopatra was the original model, a sinuous, snaky lady who poisoned her lovers or threw them to the crocodiles, who wore a serpent crown on her head and nourished an asp to her bosom. Most of our modern vamps have modeled themselves upon her. But the real vampire woman was something quite different.

"Theophile Gautier, the great French romance writer, has best described the true vampire. She is a dead woman who is brought back to earth by magic and kept alive by drinking human blood. Her favorite method is to open a vein of her lover's neck or arm while he is sleeping and suck enough blood to keep alive a few days longer.

"Can you wonder it makes me shudder to be classed with such frightful creatures? No, call me an adventuress, if you will, but not a vampire."

Miss Rotoli has considerable trouble "adventuressing" in Boston, because the village is full of friends of hers who know she isn't that kind of a girl at all.

She is a Boston girl, you know, of Italian parentage. Her father was for many years choir director at the St. James' Church, and was one of the best known singing teachers in this city. She went on the stage half dozen years ago playing the beautiful stenographer in the first "Potash and Perlmutter." Before joining the "Right Girl," she was out with Grace George in "The Ruined Lady."

ASKS JUMP IN $2,500 ALIMONY

Mrs. Ruth B. Williams, Late an Inmate of Asylum, Wants Payments Increased

Mrs. Ruth Buckminster Williams, who in 1913 secured a divorce from her husband, Gardner Boyd Williams, son of the late Jeremiah Williams, wool dealer, appeared before Judge Flynn in the divorce session of the Superior Court and asked that the present amount of alimony, $2,500 a year, be increased.

Mrs. Williams, who now is living in New York, gave as a reason why she had not made the request at an earlier date was because she had been at the McLean Asylum.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams resided on Marlboro street until Mrs. Williams separated from her husband on discovering alleged acts of unfaithfulness on his part.

After the divorce had been granted, Mrs. Williams said that Williams turned over to her $68,000 in cash and securities, which she had invested in the business of the Jeremiah Williams Co. and also agreed to pay her $2,500 a year as alimony.

Counsel for Williams claimed that the $68,000 was money belonging to Williams, which he gave his wife as part settlement for permanent alimony.

Judge Flynn will later give his decision.

Post Office Politics Banned, Hays Says

New York, June 10.—"The post office department is not an institution for politicians, and employes shall not be the shuttlecock of politics while I am in office," said Postmaster General Will H. Hays, addressing 4,000 mail men in the flag draped room of the Brooklyn post office.

He invited "the boys" to come to him personally with their grievances at any time, promising full and earnest attention. Great cheers greeted his anti-politics declaration.

Vice-President Coolidge and Mr. Hays were guests of honor at the opening exercises commemorative of the 106th anniversary of the Brooklyn Sunday School Union.

2 ARE SHOT BY BANK BANDITS

Cashier Dying, Girl Assistant Wounded in Robbery of Indiana Institution

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 10.—Cashier Clarence Smith was mortally wounded and Assistant Cashier Miss Edna Werring was seriously wounded when they resisted bandits who held up and robbed the bank of Preble at Preble, Adams County.

The robbers, after snatching several thousand dollars in currency and bonds, escaped in a high-powered automobile with an emergency posse of citizens in close pursuit.

IRISH REPUBLIC BODY TO NAME DELEGATES

In the lecture hall of the English High School, Montgomery street, an important meeting of the George Fricker Hoar Council of the A. A. R. I. R. will be held tonight, for the purpose of electing delegates to the district convention which is to take place on June 26.

DIVORCE SUIT IS SEQUEL TO SHOT

Worcester, June 10.—Garabed B. Thomajian, a prominent merchant, of No. 10 Lagrange street is being sued for divorce by Pepron Thomajian and his property is attached for $20,000. Cruel and abusive treatment is charged. The suit is a result of Thomajian's alleged action on May 2, when, it is claimed, angered because his daughter, Zaroubie, a student at Wellesley College married a New York man, he shot at his wife, the bullet missing her.

KILL CATTLE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Manchester, N. H., June 10.—Twenty cut of a herd of forty valuable cows at the Hillsborough County Farm in Grassmere, condemned by the veterinary of the State Board of Health, have been slaughtered. All but two of the animals, according to the county commissioners, were passed by the inspectors after being slaughtered as fit for beef and four of the herd showed no trace of tuberculosis after being put up, although showing traces in tests taken before killing.

DISPENSARY FUND NEEDS $90,000

With large groups of additional volunteers from practically all the young women's organizations in the city assisting, a final drive will be made tomorrow to secure $90,000, the balance of the fund of $217,800 for the Boston Dispensary. About $125,000 has been quietly raised by voluntary subscription and it is desired to give the general public an opportunity of assisting in raising the money.

"L" PROBE COST OVER $10,000

It cost the State Legislature $10,899.81 to express its "emphatic disapproval" of the action of thirty-eight present and former members in buying Elevated and other street railway stock before and during the passage of favorable street railway legislation.

This is at the rate of nearly $300 per person so disapproved.

PERSHING SHAKEN IN NEAR CRASH

Chicago, June 10.—General John J. Pershing, chief of staff, narrowly escaped an automobile accident when he visited for the first time the Chicago boulevard named in his honor. As the general's car was turning into Pershing road, a taxicab dashed madly in front of it. The general's chauffeur turned sharply aside and ran his car up on the side-walk. The general was shaken as the car went over the curb.

FEDERAL TRADE BOARD MENACED

Drive to Nullify Its Regulatory Power Over Business Is On

By NORMAN HAPGOOD, Staff Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, June 10.—Discussing the real meaning of "Less Government in Business" some time ago, I said that the expression pointed to a drive against the Federal Trade Commission. That drive is now on full tilt.

Norman Hapgood

Some of my readers will remember, perhaps, that I pointed out that all the tendency is toward more government in business. Extensive (and I think necessary) steps have been taken to help the farmer keep up his export business. For the benefit of general export business the War Finance Corporation has been revived.

The Department of Commerce has been the centre for planning to promote business activity and straighten out business difficulties. Never in its history has it taken so energetic a part in the country's business. The results have given general satisfaction.

MEANS LESS REGULATION.

"Less government in business," then, on the promoting side, has no meaning whatever. On that side it is altogether more government in business. Its total significance is to be found on the regulative side. Less regulation of business is what it means, and it means that emphatically.

Too three great regulative bodies are the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Trade Commission. They have heretofore all been successfully kept out of politics.

Whether any or all of them are to be put into politics now will develop soon. In the case of the Interstate Commerce Commission the question will centre entirely around the treatment of the railroad problem.

President Harding has indicated that he intended to let the Federal Reserve Board go along as it has been going. The indication that there would be an attempt to influence its treatment of the credit situation was not borne out.

ATTACK IS DETERMINED.

The attack on the Federal Trade Commission, however, is immediate and determined. The plan is to reduce it to a nullity by putting its publicity powers in the commerce department and its powers of control in the hands of the attorney-general.

If these two steps are taken there will be no sense at all in keeping it alive. With its usefulness entirely destroyed it will be more economical and more decent to bury it immediately.

The contest is unavoidable. It will be forced by about twenty Senators and about one hundred Representatives. The Agriculture block in Congress is favorable to the commission. They will put up a rather pretty fight to prevent the commission from being given a drink of laudanum.

ARMY IS ORDERED TO MAKE FRIENDS

Washington, June 10.—In order to foster friendly relations between the army and civilians, the War Department has issued the following instructions to all corps area commanders for special ceremonies on Flag Day, June 14:

Notify all camps and stations within territorial limits of your corps areas as follows: In order to foster mutual respect and service between the army and others of the nation, and realization by the country that officers and soldiers come from all parts of its national life, making the army a vital part of our democracy, Flag Day, June 14, 1921, will be a day of special ceremony to encourage friendly relations between the army and civilians."

DON'T DESTROY UNIONS, SAYS DAVIS

Philadelphia, June 10.—Secretary of Labor Davis warned the National Hardwood Lumber Association not to join big industries trying to smash labor unions. In the place of unions, if they were suppressed, would come secret radical organizations such as are distracting Europe, he said.

COLLAPSES IN CAFE, IS DEAD

Medical Examiner Leary today performed an autopsy on the body of Harry Lax, fifty years old, of No. 20 Ross street, South End, who collapsed in a South End cafe, while seated at a table, and died before he reached the City Hospital. The police are investigating.

LUNCH ROOM HELD UP, ROBBED OF $1.50

Charles Moore, counter man at Al's lunch room at No. 368 Columbus avenue, notified the police today that he was held up by a colored man, who robbed the cash register of $1.50. The man came into the restaurant, Moore declared, and ordered him to throw up his hands. Moore, who lives at No. 149 Chandler street, describes the man as being about 25 years of age, 5 feet 7 inches in height and about 180 pounds in weight. He wore a blue serge suit and gray cap.

MAYOR PROTESTS ON IMMIGRANTS

Wires Harding and Congressmen for Legislation to Allow Them to Land

A strong protest against the present immigration situation at Boston was registered by Mayor Peters today in telegrams to President Harding, Vice-President Coolidge, Speaker F. H. Gillett, Senators Lodge and Walsh and Congressmen Tinkham, Gallivan and Tague.

A short time previously the Mayor had stated that he had been informed some arrangement was going to be made permitting the landing of 1,000 Italian and Portuguese immigrants who arrived on the White Star liner Canopic.

"The citizens of Boston feel," the telegrams read, "that some remedial legislation should be passed immediately to relieve the present immigration situation caused by the arrival of a steamer with more than the quota allowed under the new immigration law.

"Immigrants on these ships are not responsible for their present predicament, and in my opinion they should secure some relief from the government."

Commissioner of Immigration Henry J. Skeffington today denied that any provision had been made for the release of the immigrants.

The denial was made after Commissioner Skeffington talked over the telephone with Commissioner General W. W. Husband at Washington. Mr. Skeffington said congressional action would be necessary before the new arrivals could be released.

Shipping officials are hoping for an early passage of the relief measure proposed by Congressman Tague of Massachusetts which would release all immigrants on the high seas when the new immigration law was passed.

This bill is expected to be passed by the House and Senate this week and to reach President Harding Monday.

Three other passenger liners, the Baltic American liner Estonia is due Monday, carrying several hundred more Poles, and the Portuguese liner San Vincente is due in Providence, an outport of Boston, with 450 Portuguese natives.

Passengers on Potomac Let In

The United States mail steamship Potomac arrived in Boston today from Danzig and Bremen with 34 cabin and 317 steerage passengers. The nationalities of the immigrants were so mixed that none will be held under the new immigration laws.

The Poles came nearest to filling their quota of 200 by being 197 strong. Several Essit Galicians were on board who may be barred from entering if they are ranked as Poles.

Among the six stowaways on board was Frederick Ulrich, a University of Heidelberg student, who came to find a brother in New York. He will be deported.

A blushing German lassie, Augusta Hirth, was the one bride on board.

In the fear that the landing of the Potomac's immigrants might cause rioting on the Canopic, docked immediately ahead, Superintendent Norton of Commonwealth Pier asked for and received a detail of police. There services were unnecessary, however, as no trouble developed.

SPEAKER WILL TELL CONDITIONS IN ERIN

At a meeting tonight at the National Theatre, William Whelan, of Tipperary, Ireland, will describe conditions in that country. His talk will be illustrated by pictures of ruins in Cork and other sections. Mr. Whelan, who fought in the 1916 uprising under Padraic Pearse, has been in this country for some time and comes to Boston from a speaking tour through the West. The meeting tonight is under the direction of the Irish Women's Educational League and the proceeds will go to the Irish Refugees' Fund.

CURRENT HAPPENINGS IN BOSTON SOCIETY

By BETTY ALDEN.

Two of the most fashionable weddings of the month are scheduled for tomorrow, when Miss Eleanor H. Bremer becomes the bride of Mr. Francis Parkman, and Miss Catherine Ames Royce weds Mr. Robert Cushing Hamlin. The wedding of Miss Bremer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore G. Bremer of Fisher avenue, Brookline, will take place in the First Parish Church, Brookline. Miss Alice Bremer will be maid of honor at her sister's wedding. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parkman of Commonwealth avenue.

Miss Royce's marriage will take place at St. Paul's Church, Dedham, and will be followed by a reception at "Pine Knoll," the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Royce. The bride will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Roland Baker, Jr., as matron of honor, with a bevy of charming girls as bridesmaids. Mr. James C. Hamlin of Portland, Me., will act as best man for his brother, who is a Harvard '15 man. The young couple will spend their honeymoon in Europe.

Boston will not see much of Mrs. Charles G. Weld for some time, as she has sailed for England and plans also to spend the Winter in Egypt. Mrs. Weld was accompanied by her daughter Mary and her relatives, Miss Elizabeth Tryon, who made her home with her, and Miss Margaret Winslow, the latter the daughter of Mrs. Winthrop Winslow, who was a Train.

I note that many of Boston's society folk are arriving daily at Lenox. Among those prominent at the Berkshire summer colony are Miss Anna Blake Shaw of the Hub and the Henry G. Grays of New York and Boston. Mrs. Gray, by the way, is one of the leading tennis players. Touring the Berkshires are the Misses Abby and Belle Hunt, also of this city.

FOUND ASLEEP WITH PAIR OF NOSEGAYS

With a squealing pig under one arm and a bouquet of roses clasped in his other hand, Mike Zauadski of Suntaug, Lynnfield, was discovered sleeping in a store doorway in Westcentett. The porker was turned over to the Revere piggery and Zauadski was urged to go home.

HORGAN WRONG, SAYS COURT

Former Assistant U. S. Attorney-General Acted Illegally in "Dry" Cases

Former Assistant U. S. Attorney General Herbert A. Horgan acted illegally in bringing information against various offenders of the prohibition law, according to an opinion handed down today by Judge Morton in Federal Court.

Mr. Horgan resigned several weeks ago.

The court's decision is based on four cases brought by Horgan and is an answer to motions to quash filed several weeks ago by attorneys for clients who had been arrested and who pleaded not guilty to the information. Judge Morton allows the motions and orders the informations dismissed.

In handing down his opinion the judge finds that an assistant attorney-general may only bring informations under the Volstead act when specially directed to do so by the attorney-general.

So far as the court has been able to find Attorney Horgan was instructed only to conduct grand jury proceedings in connection with liquor violations. The court said, "Nothing was said about filing informations."

DR. REILLY RESIGNS CIVIL SERVICE POST

Dr. Joseph J. Reilly today resigned as chief examiner of the State department of civil service. He will become superintendent of schools at Ware at the opening of the Fall term.

MALDEN POLICE MUST GET "WETS"

Because drunkenness has shown an alarming increase in Malden since the first of the year, particularly during May, when more drunks were locked up than in any month since 1916, Police Captain William P. Powers gave instructions to the patrolmen to make a more thorough search for violators. It was intimated that unless some policemen improved conditions on their routes drastic action would be taken.

CHAMBER TO START DRIVE ON PLAGUE

Commercial leaders of New England should co-operate with health authorities to fight bubonic plague, according to resolutions adopted by physicians at a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce. War should be made on rats both at seaports and in inland cities and towns, the medical men declared. The president of Boston Chamber of Commerce was asked to appoint a committee to look into the matter and report.

OPENS FIGHT FOR TUFTS' DEFENCE

Johnson Declares Propaganda Has Been Used in Allen's Attack

torney had divided $100,000 with his confederates?

"Did they know their District Attorney had nolle prossed the case against "Brownie" Kennedy and that she had escaped punishment?"

FOLLOWED JOHNSON.

This unexpected and explosive attack caused a general craning of necks among the scores of leading lawyers who were present in the courtroom in Suffolk County courthouse.

Hurlburt asked his pointed questions after Melvin M. Johnson, attorney for District Attorney Tufts of Middlesex, had maintained that the court had no right to investigate acts of Tufts' prior to the beginning of his present term in 1919.

That would remove the so-called Mishawum Manor "Nero Circus" and the alleged extortion plot from the scope of the investigation. Johnson had intimated that the people of Middlesex were the ones to say whether they wanted Tufts as an official and that his re-election in 1919 was a ratification of his record.

Unless his constituents knew these things I have mentioned," continued Hurlburt, "there could have been no ratification.

"Furthermore, it may be assumed for purposes of argument that the charges based on acts prior to 1919, which the opposition is so anxious to have you ignore, are true.

"If you follow this line of reasoning to its legal conclusion it might follow that a district attorney could go to another county, commit murder, and go scot free."

Hurlburt's explosion was the only dramatic incident of today's hearing, beyond the claim by Attorney Johnson that an "insidious propaganda" was being carried on against Tufts.

Today's hearing was on two motions filed in Tufts' behalf. The first questioned the right of the State Supreme Court to investigate his acts. It held that the Legislature was the only proper tribunal.

The second motion was to the effect that the investigation, if there is one, be confined to official acts of Tufts since his present term began in 1919.

CASE UNDER ADVISEMENT.

The full bench of the Supreme Court heard the arguments, Chief Justice Rugg presiding. Attorney Johnson opened for Tufts, Attorney-General Allen and Special Assistant Hurlburt answered him. Tufts was not present.

Then the court took the case under advisement. No date for a ruling has been set.

Attorney Johnson, besides his propaganda charge, argued that Tufts was a constitutional official not to be tried by the court but the Legislature; that his acts prior to 1917 were in any event outside the jurisdiction of the court.

Attorney-General Allen argued that Tufts could be tried by the Supreme Court. He quoted authorities.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Hurlburt tore the bulk of the burden of opposing Tuft's motions.

He maintained accused public officials could be tried for acts prior to the existing terms of their offices and cited the cases of Governor Sulzer of New York and Thomas Curley, former member of the Massachusetts Legislature.

Johnson in rebuttal denied there was any similarity between the cases.

While Tufts was not in court, his former law partner and political associate, George Stanley Harvey, was an interested spectator.

Attorney Johnson made his charges of "invidious propaganda" against Tufts as soon as he began speaking.

He warned the court that Tufts was entitled to trial by a fair and unbiased tribunal if he merited trial at all, and said he hoped the propaganda would fall short of its purpose.

Johnson pointed out that Tufts' rights were not the only ones involved, and said the thousands of people of Middlesex County when he served also had rights.

"I am moved to this statement by things that have happened," he added. Then he said that at the Worcester hearing before Chief Justice Rugg, Hurlburt had declared he was convinced of the guilt of Tufts. This Johnson said was an improper statement.

DENIES COURT JURISDICTION.

The lawyer for the accused stressed the importance of the case, which he termed unprecedented.

He said he did not mean to avail himself of meaningless technicalities, but did intend to fight those questions involving broad constitutional and human rights.

If the Tufts case was finally slated for trial, he predicted that the trial would last for months.

Supporting his contention that Tufts is a State official and not a court officer, Johnson referred to the removal of a Suffolk County District Attorney named Cooley by the Supreme Court some years ago for insanity.

He denied that established a precedent for the present case. Cooley was "legally dead" by reason of insanity, he said, and even then, if lawyers had fought the case he would probably not have been turned out of office by the court.

Arguing that the charges against Tufts should be tried by the Legislature, Attorney Johnson declared that similar charges had already been presented to that body and not thought worthy of action.

The charges submitted to the Legislature, he said, were "identical in word in many cases and identical in the things alleged in every instance" with the charges now before the Supreme Court.

"Notwithstanding this the Legislature adjourned without acting," he pointed out.

BUSINESS MEN ASK ONE-WAY STREETS

Thirty business firms in the leather district and adj. in the market produce section appeared before the street commissioners today.

The leather men ask that Edinboro street be made a one-way street, from Essex to Beach, while the market produce men seek the same for Commerce street, from Commercial street to Atlantic avenue. The commissioners took the petitions under consideration.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

NEWS AND NOTES OF INTERIST IN MOTION PICTURE WORLD

Ann Forrest finds something to smile about even when she has to jump out of her car and start work at half-past eight in the morning. Miss Forrest is working in the Paramount picture, "The Great Impersonation," from Oppenheim's novel.

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

"BUSTER" KEATON decided after he married Natalie Talmadge that it was better all around to make stardom a family affair. Therefore he listened to the offer made him by Joseph Schenck, Norma Talmadge's husband and head of Associated First National, and promptly signed on the dotted line. Keaton is now ranged along with Constance and Norma Talmadge as a First National star.

His contract with the Metro Picture Corporation expired some weeks ago and there have been persistent rumors that he would sign up with the Talmadge forces. It was not until yesterday, however, that the announcement was definitely made.

Mr. and Mrs. Keaton are in Hollywood now, where the comedian has started "shooting" scenes of his new comedy. They were entertained at a dinner at the home of Mr. Keaton, Sr. Among the guests were "Fatty" Arbuckle, Viola Dana, Shirley Mason, Bernard Durning, Miss Mason's husband, and and Eddie Cline, Keaton's director and co-author.

CHAPLIN VS. SHAKESPEARE.

A Howl From Stratford

THE ONLY thing that Shakespeare has on Charlie Chaplin, according to Norman Wilkinson, is that he's more "vulgar." Wilkinson is one of the governors of the Shakespeare Memorial Hall at Stratford-on-Avon and designer of the scenery and costumes of Granville Barker's Shakespearian productions, and speaks with authority.

The entire discussion of the relative merits of the bard and the comedian started when it was proposed to turn the Shakespeare Memorial Hall into a movie theatre between Shakespearian engagements. The Hall is not endowed and has not proved a paying proposition. Nowadays when a building doesn't pay it is promptly turned into a movie house and puts its owners into the leisure class.

The highbrows of Stratford howled. It was in their eyes rank sacrilege commercialism—the red rag to a highbrow. Naturally enough the agitators used the name of Charlie Chaplin freely in their arguments against the movies. Wilkinson, who had to listen to them, finally made a reply.

"Having been a patron of Shakespeare Festivals for twenty-four years, I have seen performances of 'The Taming of the Shrew,' 'The Merry Wives of Windsor,' and other plays that would make Charlie Chaplin blush. And if it is a question of vulgarity, I can only say, 'read Shakespeare.'" So that's that.

AVERY HOPWOOD VERY BUSY

WORD COMES from Avery Hopwood that he is on his way home and will leave for Hollywood immediately to fulfill his contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. He has sold the European rights to his New York success, "The Bat," and has been spending the rest of the time in Monte Carlo. Wagenhals and Kemper, who have produced several of his plays, received the following message from him:

"Have been in Monte Carlo trying to solve the secret of the bank. Cost to date, $34,000. Hopwood."

DUSTIN FARNUM AGAIN.

DUSTIN FARNUM, who has been missing from the screen for some time, has signed up with his old concern, Fox. Many of his early successes were made for this company, and it was with them that he made his great reputation and won his following.

William Farnum, his brother, is also a Fox star. He is abroad at the present time, but will return to this country during the summer to start on more productions. Dustin Farnum will work on the west coast and will start his first picture in the near future. No title has been given it as yet.

FITZMAURICE FOR LONDON.

WHEN he finishes the "shooting" of "Peter Ibbetson" at the Long Island, George Fitzmaurice will go to the Paramount studios in London, where he will remain a year. There he will produce a number of special features on the order of his last work, "Experience."

American stars will go over there to play in his productions, as they are needed, but for the most part he will use English players, that is, for the lesser roles. David Powell, who has played the male leads in many Fitzmaurice features, is already there. Ouida Bergere, Mr. Fitzmaurice's wife and scenarist, will accompany him overseas to write his continuities.

ANOTHER SPANIARD LOOKING OVER THE GROUND.

Madrid Beauty Arrives

ANOTHER señorita has come to America to look over it, to look over here, following on the heels of Señorita de Soria, who came to try to buy the film rights to the Avery Hopwood-Mary Roberts Rinehart melodrama, "Spanish Love." The new arrival is Señorita Narcita.

She has come to this country, thinking that she may build her own studio and do her own producing. She arrived from Madrid a short time ago and is in New York. Señorita Narcita was associated with the Royal Cinema Corporation of Montreal and with the Patria Company of Madrid.

She left the Canadian concern in 1917 when the studios and entire plant were burned. After that she returned to Spain. She is representing a group of French and Spanish capitalists. Louis Halpaz, the French director, who has been producing in Nice, France, is one who is backing her enterprise. If the plans do not go through, she will return to Europe to star in Halpaz' pictures.

U. S. Conditions of Recognition Call for Revision of Constitution

Mexico City, June 10.—Mexico today agreed to grant No. 2 and No. 3 of the American state department conditions for Mexican recognition, but as they call for revision of Article No. 27 of the Mexican constitution, it was learned from unofficial sources today.

The Mexican government at first would refuse to accept any compromise which interfered with the right of Mexico to make her own laws. It was learned that however that Mexico will give assurances to the United States that no law enacted in this country shall be retroactive. Mexico officials do not believe the present claims are unreasonable.

STABILITY! In man is just as essential as it is in an airplane. The only difference is that lack of plane stability means a quicker death for the pilot. Above is shown a device recently invented by a Frenchman for the purpose of indicating to the flier the correct angle at which his plane is banking. Lights tell exact level of machine. The invention controls every movement except steering. (A.P.)

A LADY FAIR. In the very latest boudoir cap and camisole of Lady Fair ribbon. Insertions of lace lend charm to the cap. Georgette composes the upper portion of the dainty Summer garment. Both are cool and serviceable. (Key.)

PENNY SLEUTH. Miss Katherine Howard, director of the women's savings account division of the treasury, whose duty requires her to keep track of all the pennies saved by the women of U. S. (U. & U.)

LADY FISH. And very clever, too. Each has some claim to swimming distinction in California, land of sea sylphs and luscious oranges. Left to right, Frances Cowells, Pacific coast spring champion and winner of the swim across the Golden Gate; Evelyn Ross of Venice, Cal., Mabel Green, Edith Vanucchi and Edna Webster, all clever swimmers or divers.

AN EYE FULL. No, Oscar, the man is not near-sighted. He is an artisan and is shown with a colossal pair of opera glasses to be used as an advertising sign. He makes everything from gold teeth to wedding rings and roosters, all of tremendous bulk. It is an American enterprise and one of the most curious in the world. The finishing touches are being made on the pair of giant glasses. (Newsreel)

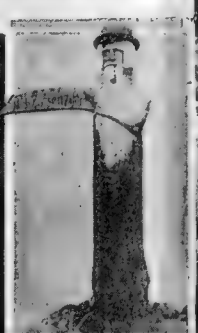
BEAUTIFUL CHILD STUDIES. Of extraordinary children. The little girl with the bowl in her hand is not a doll, although she looks like one. In the center, with her irresistible Kewpie smile, is Bernice Weinthal, 4, New York's perfect child. At right is a bit of polo. Bruce Jones, 2, of White Plains, N. Y., is shown with his big English bull. And next to him are two little Mexican children exchanging a gentle kiss. Life is indeed sweet in the playtime of youth.

SKEETA CHASER. Miss Louise McRoberts of San Francisco, first woman ever appointed instructor in bacteriology in college of dentistry, University of California. (A.P.)

WINGED ENERGY. Dale Merrick of Wisconsin winning the pole vault at Stagg Field, Chicago, with a leap of 12 feet during the intercollegiate meet. Camera caught Merrick just after he had sailed over the crossbar. (U. & U.)

POCAHONTAS, 1921. Another Indian Princess has sailed for England, Wah-letka, of Venita, Okla., charming and sophisticated aristocrat of her race. Her beautiful garments attracted much attention on the voyage. Sailed on S. S. Olympic. (U. & U.)

COOL AND SWEET. Pipe smoking has rapidly come in vogue among fashionable Parisians. This member of the Paris Latin quarter seems to be enjoying a quiet smoke, perhaps after posing all day for some querulous artist. The pipe, a meerschaum, is a delicate and finely carved masterpiece. Note how clearly the figures stand out. The mouthpiece is of amber. (W. W.)



HELP! This German sign post would frighten rather than aid pedestrians or motorists in this country. It's the custom there. This one is just outside of Berlin, in Zossen. Sign says: "To Zossen, 7.5 kilometres." (W. W.)

SAFE ENOUGH! For any kind of sea travel is this recently invented non-sinkable safe, now installed in all Dutch mail boats. Is waterproof and if the ship should sink the big vault automatically releases itself from its bearings. A passing ship would then pick it up. Sirens on top blow when safe hits water. Picture taken on ship-board. Shows vault in place. (W. W.)

SOME PULL HERE. Water tug of war is a playful combination of deep sea swimming, ordinary tug of war, a free-for-all fight and a smart game of mud pies. Obviously, it is not a game for tea hounds or lounge lizards. Real "he" men only are wanted for the matches. This team seems to be losing. Notice the water churning around them. (W. W.)

THIS SQUEALER. Will be the piece de resistance at Dempsey's victory dinner after the big quarrel, July 2. Jack has been fattening the little fellow on choice camp morsels. (U. & U.)

BRITISH WAR WITH TURKS IMMINENT

London, June 10.—According to the Daily Express war between Great Britain and the Turkish nationalists is imminent. This newspaper states that Premier Lloyd George has been conferring with his ministers on the Near-Eastern situation. The official view is that nationalist Turkey may have to be blockaded as Germany was during the world war.

DRUGGED GIRL FOUND IN HOTEL

Miss Margaret Hanson, pretty twenty-four-year-old girl, was removed to the Haymarket Relief Hospital from the Crawford House early today in a dazed condition. She is suffering from ether poisoning and her condition is critical.

Miss Hanson was found by hotel employes who notified the police of the City Hall avenue station.

Investigation by the police led the authorities to believe that the victim resided somewhere in the South End. She is said to have come here from the Middle West to study in a local hospital.

A Feast in the Midst of Famine

There exists in America today such a scarcity of fine clothing as to amount practically to a famine. Nothing like it has ever been known before. The great stores of the country are combing the wholesale markets for good goods, but in vain. There's plenty of cheap stuff—as usual—but no fine merchandise, and no time now to produce any more for this season.

We anticipated this situation eight or ten weeks ago and placed supplementary orders for

Kuppenheimer Suits to sell at $35 to $50

These goods are now here and on sale, giving our customers advantages in size and variety of stock, style and quality of merchandise, such as no other clothing concern in the country offers today, to say nothing of the price advantage which always exists here.

Furthermore, this season's Kuppenheimer Suits are so conspicuously superior in style and quality and so comparatively low in price that their leadership is freely and universally acknowledged.

So this good clothes famine needn't worry any man within traveling distance of a Kennedy Store, for here is spread a veritable feast of choice goods and big values to which he is invited.

MOVIE TITLE LIST ON JUNE 18

Awards and Talks With Successful Ones Coming; Song Picture No. 3 Today

By THE TEST EDITOR

Before saying a word about the $5,000 Songs of the World Test, the third picture in which is printed here today, the Test Editor desires to make the following important announcement regarding the recent $5,000 Movie Play Title Test:

Names of the 219 winners in the $5,000 Movie Play Title Test will be printed in the Boston American on Sunday, June 18, one week from tomorrow.

In addition to naming the 219 winners the Boston American one week from tomorrow will contain pictures of and interviews with the Nine Leaders.

Those who earned the $1,000, $750, $500, $400, $300, $200, $150, $100 and $50 awards will tell in the Boston American next week saturday) exactly how they did.

With the printing of Picture No. 46 of the old test—with 10 Correct Titles—the readers will recognize all the remaining twenty titles and pictures will be part of the Big Story on Saturday, June 18.

Please keep day and date in mind and if you want every cheers will be after speak today to your newsdealer

PLAN OF SONG TEST.

Returning now to the $5,000 Songs of the World Title Test and Test Picture No. 3 which is on this page the Test Editor will explain again the plan of the New Test:

This test consists of two parts.

First is the Test Picture, which appears today in this issue.

Second a list of Titles containing among them the correct Title.

Those who take part in the Test are asked to find the correct title in the list. Then they are asked to write it on the line reserved for that purpose immediately below the picture.

Now, man correct titles do you think you can write?

The Test contains for 60 days. There will be 60 pictures in the Movie Play Title Test, each based recently frames of the wonders a week from tomorrow, one picture a day.

Out of 60 pictures Another participant had so few as 30. Three hundred made scores of 40 and better. One wrote 52 and won be paid $1,000 in cash.

It is MOST important that every reader who takes part in the Songs of the World Test read the Rules of the Test. Put them on this page. You cannot win a prize unless you understand the rules and know the Rules. They are very simple necessary.

Don't send pictures and Titles to us before the end of the Test. Wait patiently for send Titles or Pictures before the end of the Test.

LIST OF AWARDS.

When 60 pictures have been printed participants in the Test will forward their papers to The Test Headquarters and will be notified of the size of the awards will be paid, and those who have sent in the largest list of correct titles:

ONE FIRST AWARD	$1,000
ONE SECOND AWARD	500
ONE THIRD AWARD	750
ONE FOURTH AWARD	500
ONE FIFTH AWARD	400
ONE SIXTH AWARD	300
ONE SEVENTH AWARD	200
ONE EIGHTH AWARD	150
ONE NINTH AWARD	100
ONE TENTH AWARD	50
TEN AWARDS OF $10 EACH	1,000
210 AWARDS OF $5 EACH	550
TOTAL	$6,000

In the Boston American one week from tomorrow the readers who captured the nine big awards in the Movie Play Title Test will tell how they figured out the Titles and beat Mr Artist at his own game.

You understand of course that you are taking part in a contest.

On our part we put in every day a Test Picture and in the Lines or Titles which accompany it, the Correct Title of that picture.

We invite YOU to find the Correct Title.

The artist challenges you to do it!

The correct Title will be there every day. On certain days it will be easier to find it. On other days it will be more difficult. Perhaps the Songs of the World Test will be generally considered easy for a time, then suddenly the artist will become tricky and mischievous and will amuse himself by making the Test extremely difficult for a time. Perhaps for a time the Test will be very hard, then suddenly the artist will become easy

BRAVES BATTLE FOR VICTORY

Boston Players, Stung by Two Defeats in a Row, Go After Pirates

Pittsburgh, June 10—The fighting Braves, stung by two defeats in succession at the hands of the Pirates, were in a more fractious mood than ever when the last game of the present series began on Forbes Field today. There was fire in their eyes and, so they averred, base hits in their bats when it came to be tossed against them.

To halt the Pirate assault John Scott was selected by Fred Mitchell. The big fellow had not been in a game since his triumph over the Reds in the last Cincinnati fray, and was in fine form to go the distance in today's joust.

JOHNNY DUNDEE MADE 10 TO 8 FAVORITE OVER K. O. CHANEY

TITLE BOUT PRIZE FOR WINNER

Italian Admits He Expects to Be in Hard Battle, but Is Certain of Victory

By Jack Conway

Johnny Dundee has been made a 10 to 8 favorite for his ten-round battle with George Chaney, sensational lava king, which will be staged by the Faneuil A. C. at Mechanics Building tonight. The wise boys are of the opinion that Dundee's best-cut bursts of speed and fine ring generalship will enable him to gain the honors.

Chaney, however, has plenty of supporters who believe that his terrific punching power will make it possible for him to defeat Dundee who, with the exception of Tuck Tucker, has won his last eight bouts by knockouts. And he now intends to make it nine wins in a row by putting over the big smash tonight.

The nose-to-nose between these lightweight leaders was staged as an attraction at the ringside and as a result a record crowd will be on hand to witness the mill.

The match will decide whether Dundee or Chaney will get the next shot at Benny Leonard. Dundee has already engaged in a number of battles with the lightweight boss with credit to himself, Chaney is eager to get into a ring with the champion as he ventures that his own punching power would give him a chance to grab the title.

When Dundee arrived at the Hotel Vendome last night he was met by a delegation of his fellow townsmen, who had come to Boston to see the New Haven boy in action. The party was headed by Tom Baltimore, Dundee's manager, who expressed confidence that his protege would win.

"I'll stop Dundee sure," he said. "You know I am hitting very hard," he continued, "my last eight opponents have all passed out of the picture inside of the limit. All I ask is a referee who can count to ten, I'll do the rest."

Dundee arrived in Boston early today after having come over to this city on the night train from New York.

"Has any Chaney claims he is going to flatten me?" Dundee inquired, then started talking about Britt, Jackson, Leonard and some of the other lightweight stars he has met.

"Chaney," continued the great little Italian, "does all those

The 'Boob' Who Lives in Big Mansion on the Hill

By JACK CONWAY

We print the following extract from a letter we received in our mail today:

"You said a whole lot when you defined a 'boob' as a person who usually differs from his fellows and then backs his convictions with real money and wins. I am a 'boob.' I live in a mansion on a hill in a very well-known town near Boston. I have made my fortune by holding opinions different from most people. And I have never hesitated to back my views with money. Of course, there are a lot of people who call me a 'lucky boob,' but I am satisfied.

"There are a lot of 'wise guys' in my town. But they live in ordinary houses, have few of the luxuries of life and hardly know where they are going to get money with which to buy next Winter's coal. But very naturally they can give me five thousand dollars any day it's worth while from the floaters of an international loan to the reason why the town beauty wears a red hat.

"I close my case contended I have shown cause why I am a 'boob.'

AS A 'BOOB,' I LIKE CARPENTIER. Of course the 'wise guys' will differ with me. But I have made my money differing with these gentlemen, and so a mhappy."

Lightweights are going to stop me. And to date Willie Jackson is the only fellow who has been able to perform this task. I expect Chaney will give me a thrilling battle, but I will beat him. Yes, Johnny Dundee will be the one who will do the deliberating when the final blow has been delivered."

There will be three preliminary bouts which assure the fans of plenty of excitement.

Johnny McGann, who is in charge of the Faneuil Club's affairs at No. 39 Court street, announces a ringside sale. He stated today however that there are still plenty of choice seats to be had.

Carpentier Nearly Ready for Big Bout Right Now

By PAT ROBINSON

Manhasset, L. I., June 10.—The Scribes and Pharisees found the going smooth at Camp Carpentier. Francois Descamps, astute manager of the French hope, appeared in shirt sleeves, wearing a sport cap and his best smile of the training season. It may have been the weather or an especially good dinner, but whatever the cause the dapper manager condescended to come down to the barbed wire entanglements, bringing Georges and an interpreter with him for a talk with the writers.

Manager Francois opened verbal hostilities with the announcement that Georges had attained the greatest weight of his career—17—in his imported pink silk underwear.

YOUNG BUT WISE, SAYS CHAMP

With Jack Kearns, Hayes Works to Get Title Holder in Best Shape Ever

By Jack Dempsey,

Heavyweight Champion of the World

Atlantic City, N. J., June 10.—It is peculiar that some persons insist that I am looking for this fight without a trainer. The real fact is that I have as a trainer by me the best man of his kind and for my style in the ring in the game in the line of business.

He was a fighter himself a dozen years ago. Then he became trainer for Tom Christie, and the always has said that it was the handling of Teddy which kept him in such tip top shape. Teddy was trainer for Jack Dillon, when Jack was at his superlative best; he trained Harlem Kimball and a host of other fighters.

Under the dual handling of Teddy Hayes and Kearns, I'm going into the battle on July 2 in the best physical condition of my career. They've held me back when I wanted to tear loose, and they are timing my conditioning to such a way that I'll be at the absolute top of my form on July 2.

There Is a Wild Flurry at the Masked Ball When the Men Catch Sight of a Dancer Who Later Proves to Be Strelsa Leeds

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Rick Quarren, a talented young man, lives in bachelor quarters with friends, all fine fellows. The house is known as the Irish Legation. When the story opens Quarren's friends are discussing the return of one of his chicks. They assert that society has got a hold on him, and is making a nobody out of him. Westguard who has accepted the check, calls Quarren's attention to it. The latter takes it light-heartedly, saying that he forgot to make a deposit. Mrs. Wycherly, a cousin of Westguard's, brings Strelsa Leeds, a fascinating young widow of scarcely twenty, to call. The men all fall in love with her. Quarren is taking a nap and does not see her. Mrs Wycherly laughingly says he'll be sorry when the three other tenants describe Strelsa's charms to him. When the ladies go the men discuss Strelsa's worthless late husband, and pay a tribute to her forbearance. Molly Wycherly gives a masque ball at which Westguard warns Quarren about his business matters

"FLAPPER," observed a painted and powdered clown whose voice betrayed him as O'Hara, "this town is overstocked with fudge-red broilers. They're always playin' about under foot, spoilin' your huntin'; and if you touch 'em they hi-yi no end."

"I suppose you're looking for Mrs. Leeds," said Westguard, smiling.

"I fancy every man here is doin' the same thing," replied the clown. "What's her costume? Do you know, Irenaides?"

"I wouldn't tell you if I did," said Westguard frankly.

The Harlequin shrugged.

"This world," he remarked, "is principally encumbered with women, and naturally a man supposes the choice is unlimited. But as you live to drift from girl to girl you'll discover that there are just two kinds; the kind you can kiss and the kind you can't. So finally you marry the latter. Does Mrs. Leeds flirt?"

"Will a fish swim?" rejoined the clown. "You bet she will flirt. Haven't you met her?"

"I? No," said the Harlequin carelessly. Which secretly amused both Westguard and O'Hara, for it had been whispered about that the new beauty not only had taken no pains to meet Quarren, but had pointedly ignored an opportunity when the choice lay with her, remarking that dancing men were one of the social necessities which everybody took for granted—like flowers and champagne. And the comment had been carried straight to Quarren, who had laughed at the time—and had never forgotten it, nor the apparently causeless contempt that had evidently inspired it.

Gazed About.

The clown brandished his bunch of toy balloons, and gazed about him:

"Anybody who likes can go and tell Mrs. Leeds that I'm her declared suitor. I don't care who knows it. I'm foolish about her She's different from any woman I ever saw, and if I don't find her pretty soon I'll smash every balloon over your head, Ricky."

The Harlequin laughed. "Woman," he said, "are cut out in various and amusing patterns like animal crackers, but the fundamental pastry cook is seasoned it."

"That's a sickly and degenerate sentiment," observed Westguard reprovingly.

"You might say that about the unfledged," added O'Hara—"like those kittenish bacchantes. Winifred Miller and the youngest Vernon girl were two of those flappers, I think. But there's no real jollity among the satiated," he added despondently. "A mask, a hungry stomach and empty pockets are the proper ingredients for gaiety—take it from me, Karl." And he wandered off, beating everybody with his bunch of toy balloons.

Quarren leaped to the seat of a chair and squatted there, drawing his shimmering legs up under him like a great jewelled spider.

"Bet you ten that the voluminous domino yonder envelops my aunt, Mrs Sprowl" whispered Westguard

"You're betting on a certainty and a fat ankle"

"Sure. I've seen her ankles going upstairs too often. . . . What the devil is the old lady wearing under that domino?"

See Her Later

"Wait till you see her later," said Quarren, delightedly. "She has come as Brunhilda."

"I don't want to see three hundred pounds of relative as Brunhilda," growled Westguard

"You will see mine, she's given her photograph to a Herald man"

What did you let her do it for?" demanded Westguard wrathfully.

"Could I help it?"

"You could have stopped her. She thinks your opinion is the last leap in fashionable art problems"

"There are some things you can't tell a woman," said Quarren. "One of 'em concerns her weight"

"Are you afraid of Mrs. Sprowl?"

The Harlequin laughed:

"Where would I be if I incurred your aunt's displeasure, dear friend?"

"Out of the monkey house for good, I suppose," admitted Westguard. "Lord, Ricky, what fool you have had to swallow for the sake of staying put among these people!"

"I can't let several years of humiliation go for nothing. I've earned whatever place I have. And I mean to keep it" he said.

Westguard turned on him half angrily, hesitated, then remained silent. What was the use? If Quarren had not been guilty of a guilty fawning, toadying, currying favor, he had certainly permitted himself to be rudely used He had learned very thoroughly his art in the school of the courtier —learned how and when to be blind, silent, deaf, how to offer, how to yield, when and how to demand and exact. Which, to Westguard, meant the prostitution of intelligence. And he loathed the game like a man who is free to play it if he cares to. Of those who are damned participation, few really hate it.

Nothing More

But he said nothing more; and the Harlequin, indolently stretching his glittering limbs, dropped a light hand on Westguard's outraged shoulder:

"Don't be forever spoiling things for me, Karl. I really do enjoy the game as it lies"

"It does lie—that is the trouble, Pite"

"I can't afford to criticise it . . . Listen! I'm a mediocre man I'd never count among real men. I count in the set which I amuse and which accepts me. Let me enjoy it, can't you?"

An aged dandy, masked, painted, wizened, and dressed like Henri II., tottered by with a young girl on his arm, his shrill, falsetto giggle piercing the racket around them

"Do you wish to live to be like that?" asked Westguard sharply.

"Oh, I'll die long before that," said Quarren cheerfully and leaned lightly to his feet. "I shall now accomplish a little dancing," he said, pointing with a sword at the coming throng. "A woman who resembles her husband. . . . Mr. Barches! Those dancers are going it! Come on, Karl. Leave us foot it!"

Many maskers were throwing confetti now; multi-tinted serpents shot out across the glamorous gulf; bunches of roses flung high, rising in swift arcs of flight, crossed and recrossed. All along the edges of the dance, like froth and autumn leaves cast up from a whirlpool, dirty feminine derelicts and gorgeous masculine escorts were flung to mill out of the maelstrom and left stranded or drifting breathless among the eddies arising in toward the supper-room.

Suddenly, as the Harlequin bent forward to plunge into the crush, the very centre of the whirlpool parted and out of it floated a fluttering, jingling dazzling figure all go-demoded here armed and bare of throat and shoulders, gauntleted, gem-crowned to ankle, clad in her sleeveless tabard was gowned of gold, and her mask was gold; her hair and her jewelled shoes and the gemmed fillet that bound her locks, and her thick hair rippling against her cheek and the flash of precious metal.

Besieged by Adorers

Jingling, fluttering, gems flashing, masked and bare, the Byzantine dancer besieged by adorers deftly evaded their pressing gallantries, evaded the Harlequin too with laughing mockery, skilfully disengaging herself from the throng of admirers stumbling around her, enmeshed and buffeted on every side.

After her as a flash sped Harlequin, for an instant lost ahead of his quarry, then pausing at the edge of the dance floor, seeing her emerge at the green and shadowy entrance of the long arcade of flowers and trees, saw her pause and look at her and vanish between their very eyes.

Then, annoyed distracted by hunting for her New York friend Major, Indian Army and Strelsa Leeds, then recognizing gave up the quest and decided to look for Strelsa Leeds, for all women are ideal under the mysterious influence of the mask. A few unconscious dangerous remarks to Quarren a moment and her fan

Then her feet did her now! laughter, a grasp at Quarren's sleeve, and she was a rag about meeting a mere Harlequin. It refreshing to see you so thoroughly snubbed once in a while." And she danced gaily away, arms akimbo, her garlanded crook over her shoulder; and her taunting laughter floated back to him where he stood irresolute, wondering how the golden dancer could have so completely vanished.

He Recollected

Suddenly he recollected going over the house before its completion with Jim Wycherly, who had been his own architect, and the memory of a certain peculiarity in the construction of the ball-room flashed into his mind The only possible explanation for her disappearance was that somebody had pointed out to her the low door behind the third pr and she was now in the gilded swallow's-nest aloft

It was a whim of Wycherly—this concealed stairway—he called it; perfectly unwarranted putting the living tapestry of Semele to a hand on the heavy door, gently pushing pressing the heart of one carved rose after another, until with a click a tiny door swung inward, revealing a narrow spiral of stairs, lighted roolly by elaborately

He stepped inside closed the door and listened then mounted noiselessly. He was not to caught the aroma of a cigarette and a second later, he stepped out into a tiny tapestried bower, completely secluded

The golden dancer, who evidently had been gazing down on the carnival scene below from behind the lattice, whirled around to confront him in a little flurry of cigarette smoke.

For a moment they faced each other there.

"How did you know where to find me, Harlequin?"

"If I had need if I hadn't found you I'd look for you just the same"

"That is no answer! Answer me"

"Why did you flee?" he asked "Answer that first"

She glanced at her cigarette and shrugged her shoulders

"You see why I fled, don't you? Now answer me"

The Harlequin presented the bit of the second he was not with a look of

"You see why I fled after you," he said, "don't you?"

Her Suspicion

When Luther Willard came out of the house at the end of a few hours, Elizabeth made a suggestion.

"Now, suppose you go into the dining room and get the alcohol lamp for the coffee urn. Luther says I will be in the toast and coffee department."

He agreed to the other proposition with a nod, but the waitress wished to be alone with Luther.

But Luther as Luther read the case only urged Elizabeth proposed that he should go to find and remained the operation.

"But let him cook the stuff too long," warned Elizabeth as she started out with the urn. "I'm not going to have any one forget about the rabbit"

But he did not forget about it and when Luther was called to join the bridal party he took off the coffee urn from the stove and left it standing on the table by

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

The founder of the Rothschilds' fortune was once asked for advice on the stock market. He is credited with having replied that there are only a few times within a man's life time when absolutely every condition favors a rise in stocks, when one can be sure that nothing but an advance can take place. He added that, whenever this wonderful combination of circumstances arises, the thing to do is to sell stocks.

* * *

Speculative wiseacres talk, and many of them act, as if exactly the opposite state of conditions existed today. They see no hope anywhere. They can call a roll a mile long, of depressing happenings in the money market, in foreign exchange, in industry, in mining, in transportation, in merchandising, in dividends, in labor, in agriculture, in international trade, in the foreign situation, in the investment market, in the stock market—everywhere the eye can turn.

Is it not just possible that Rothschild's advice is worth calling to mind at this juncture? If the time to sell is when there isn't a cloud in the sky and everything is booming, may it not be that the time to buy is when there are no clouds but clouds in the sky and everything is going the wrong way, as the crowd sees it?

Stock quotations this week have fallen to the lowest level in years. The compilations of average prices for railroad and industrial stocks combined reveal that since the beginning of last year the industrial average has tumbled from par (100) to 60, a drop of 40 per cent.—which, it may be noted in passing, is almost exactly the extent of the decline in wholesale commodity prices from last year's peak. The railroad issues have fared better during this same period, although they are down some 25 per cent. even from the closing quotation of 1916, when everything was in the doldrums.

* * *

Yesterday the daring professional bears again went on the rampage, and over one hundred stocks were depressed to new low quotations for this year. The shares of steel companies were attacked with special viciousness and inflicted rather heavy losses. The steel industry has rendered itself particularly vulnerable at this time because of its tardiness in starting to readjust prices after almost every other industry was well along toward a solid, post-war level. Wall Street confidently looks for aggressive price-cutting in steel in order to attract business. Production of pig iron last month was at the lowest rate ever recorded since the formation of the U. S. Steel Corporation, over twenty years ago. The theory proclaimed by Judge Gary and others months ago that price-cutting would not increase ordering of steel has now been abandoned, and the dominating corporation and the independents are out, to corral orders by the weapon they formerly described as useless, namely, price-cutting.

* * *

How the shares of prominent steel companies are now suffering may be seen from the following table, which shows the high quotations for last year, the high quotations for this year and the low levels reached this week:

	High 1920	High 1921	Price Now	Decline Year
U. S. Steel	107	87	74	31%
Bethlehem	120	78	61	57
Lackawanna	75	53	42	33
Lackawanna	97	61	48	37
Republic	93	59	39	54
Bethlehem	90	62	50	40
Crucible	178	107	69	47
Midvale	60	40	27	33
Sloss Sheffield	82	60	38	20

Any person who imagines that he can forecast what the stock market will do from day to day is a fool. There are times, however, when it does not take superhuman acumen to analyze whether the majority of trustworthy observers are falling unreasonably high or unreasonably low prices. Because of the deluge of dividend reductions and dividend omissions, and because of other temporarily disturbing happenings, stock quotations may fluctuate widely, not to say wildly, for some time. The bears, emboldened by success, may pound the market with still greater fury and perhaps with more or less success.

Nevertheless, it can be safely and conservatively declared that the investor who possesses ready money can purchase seasoned stocks and bonds right now at more attractive figures than are available more than a few times in a generation.

A sage once remarked that it isn't so very important how far you have gone, but that it is infinitely important that you are traveling in the right direction. Financial conditions, industrial conditions, labor conditions, international conditions and all other basic conditions are moving in the right direction. Every bear market ever experienced has reached the turning point—except, of course, this one. Don't fear that this one, too, will reach the turning point. It may reach it without any warning long before the snow begins to fly this year.

Stocks Higher; Call Money Opens at 6%; Sterling Down

OILS ADVANCE, STEELS GAIN

Market Has Better Tone From the Opening; Bear Raid Not Resumed

By W. H. Ross,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, working upward in the second hour after a promising start. Morning gains ranged from fractions to more than two points. But there were some weak spots in the list. Trading was active on the advance, first hour transactions exceeding 300,000 shares. Call money opened at 6 per cent. The foreign exchange market remained weak, demand sterling starting 3½ cents lower at 3.71½, and francs, lire and marks a little lower.

Among strongest issues were Mexican Petroleum, Pan American, Cosden, Pacific Oil, Crucible, Bethlehem, B. R. T., Springfield, U. S. Rubber, Studebaker, Chandler, Reading, Baldwin, American Locomotive, Sinclair, American Tobacco and General Asphalt. Among the weakest were Atlantic, Famous Players and New York Air Brake.

BETTER TONE AT OPENING.

While the price movement was mixed when trading began, the tone set had a better tone and the early movement was upward. Within a few minutes it was fairly strong with oils leading the advance. E. J. Dohoney says regarding the higher export rate demanded by Mexico that it is no new situation, it being the third time in a little more than a year that such an increase has been proposed. He is confident that a showing of the irregularity and confectionary character of the decree will result in revocation.

Atlantic Gulf ran contrary to the general trend, selling off four points to a low record figure within the first hour, while Lackawanna Steel opened at its lowest in six years. Price changes ruled small on initial transactions, but there were some substantial gains later. Utah recovered a point loss and showed a gain. It was the only active copper. Rails had an irregular start, steels and tires were weak and motors, tobaccos and equipment ruled slightly higher. Sugars were generally weak at a strong especially.

CHEAPER MONEY FELT.

The market felt the benefit of a lower money rate this morning and the reduction was disconcerting to the bear contingent. It figured a high rate could be relied upon until after the mid-month disbursements incidental to governmental and other needs had been met. Requirements have evidently been or provided for already and left us in comfortable surplus. The reserve ratio of the Federal Reserve System made a good gain and now stands at 58.2 against 57.4. Boston advanced from 68.9 to 69.6 and New York from 59.3 to 64. Everything indicated a further drop from the highest gain of all. Cleveland's ratio dropped from 70.9 to 66.6. Money was loaned on call at 6% during the exchange yesterday at 5½ per cent., while it is stated that $100,000,000 more than was required was available for borrowers. Less borrowing demand for stocks was reported at the close. American Sugar and United Fruit commanded a premium.

Price Cutting Not Over

Price reductions are not over, in the opinion of James McCoy, actuary of the United States Treasury. He sees in the decrease in per capita circulation of money a significant factor of the trend and says: "The 98-cent June decrease. "It shows that prices are falling. It means money is getting harder to obtain, because there is less of it to be had. When you have to work harder to get money, it is worth more, and will buy more. During the war money was inflated, plentiful, and easy to obtain—that is, comparatively."

Copper Market Still Dull

The copper market is as dull as ever in both domestic and foreign branches. The so-called 10,000,000 pound sale to a San Francisco consumer was in reality delivery of part of an order for 60,000,000 pounds placed with Anaconda, Copper Co. and eastern wire makers four months ago.

Wall Street Briefs

Lloyd George Exactly Right About Poland

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The Poles have no rightful claim to any part of Upper Silesia.

If the Poles have a rightful claim to Upper Silesia because it was Polish territory 600 years ago, then Germany has the rightful claim to Alsace and Lorraine, for they were indisputably German territory 600 years ago—were German territory, in fact, for 700 years before France seized them in the Eighteenth Century.

If the Poles have a rightful claim to Upper Silesia because some districts are inhabited by large numbers of Polish immigrants, then Germany has the rightful claim to Alsace-Lorraine, because the majority of the inhabitants are certainly Germans.

The plain truth is that Poland is the nation which France desires to build up, as her military ally, and to take the place occupied by Russia during the despotism of the Romanoff Czars.

It was France that instigated, financed and equipped the unprovoked Polish invasion of Russia.

It was France that instigated and consents to the outrageous invasion of Lithuania and the seizing of the capital city, Vilna, which the Poles still hold in defiance of the Allied Supreme Council and in flat violation of the peace treaty.

And it was unquestionably France that instigated the present invasion of Upper Silesia by the Poles, in violation of the rights of Germany, as clearly laid down in the Versailles Treaty.

At present, under the supervision and at the urgency of Mr. Hoover, we Americans are spending millions of dollars in feeding Poland's population.

We feed the families of these unfortunate men, while their military masters keep the men in the army, so that the money begged from our sympathy and charity for starving women and children is actually being spent to further Polish imperialism and militarism.

We think that there has been enough to this sort of thing.

We think, too, that you people ought to know that the flour and foodstuffs for Polish relief are sold at a profit, and we strongly suspect and hope soon to be able to prove that a ring of unscrupulous American and Polish profiteers has been formed for the purpose of making still more profit out of American charitable relief in Poland.

Lloyd George is not right nor straightforward in many things, but he is both straightforward and right in his indictment of Polish imperialism and Polish militarism—aided and abetted, as all the world knows, by French imperialism and French militarism in one assault after another upon neighbor States and the peace of the world.

Hughes' Mexican Treaty

Beneficial Results of Open Negotiations Shown in Arranging for Proposed Neighborly Pact

Those who have carefully read and considered Secretary Hughes' proposal for a treaty between this country and our neighbor, Mexico, which shall mutually establish the rights of each other's citizens in each other's territory, can scarcely help being favorably impressed with two things. One is the fairness of the objects sought to be accomplished by the proposed treaty and the other is the fairness of that new method of diplomacy—"open covenants openly arrived at."

In its several diplomatic exchanges, the present administration has shown by example the beneficial result of open negotiations which its phrase-making predecessor could never understand. The publication of Mr. Hughes' note helps to make clearer our rather turgid relations with Mexico.

We ask nothing of Mexico that we ourselves are not willing to grant to the people of Mexico. We only ask Mexico, as a condition of recognizing her government, that she recognize and heed those established principles of international law which govern the intercourse of nations with each other and to which we ourselves submitted when we asked and received the recognition of other countries and were taken into the family of nations.

For years Americans were invited by the Mexican Government to come into Mexico and to help develop her resources, just as we invited foreign capital to come into our country and to develop our virgin resources. American citizens accepted that invitation and went into Mexico and invested their money and labor there according to and in reliance upon the laws of Mexico. Then came a revolution in 1917 and a new Constitution in Mexico that confiscated American rights, which, under the principles of international law, had been clearly established.

If the people of Mexico want us to recognize their government and hold friendly intercourse with it, we only say to them what our own forefathers said, in our national Constitution, to the people of all our American States, "You must not take life, liberty or property without just compensation and due process of law."

Mr. Hughes has put our case in an open, fair, respectful, friendly and almost ingratiating way—he has now given the case to the people of both countries and we believe that, by the subtle, mysterious reaction which often occurs when the great numbers apply their thoughts to a given subject, an entente cordial will result and neighbors will once more be neighbors.

ARE YOU SURE OF YOUR JOB

If you are an employe, there are times when you can see that reductions are bound to be made in the working force where you are.

When you consider your standing with the firm, what effect has it on you?

You are foolish if you think you will not be the one to be discharged, because of your opinion that it would be difficult to fill your place.

The fact that you can have such a thought indicates that you are not giving the best there is in you, and the fact that you are not doing your very best is a good reason why you may be the first to be laid off.

Don't allow yourself to think that you are indispensable to any one.

If you do think so, remember that it will show in your personal attitude.

It is the business of employers to study the characters and dependable qualities of those who work for them, and the more successful the employer the closer he studies his men.

An employer has definite plans for the future of his business, and he knows that he cannot hope to be successful if he has any one man who can make or break it. You are not all there is of it.

Europe Shows Ingratitude

By Universal Service.

PARIS, June 10.—Cartoons in Paris, London, Rome, Bucharest and Belgrade newspapers represent Uncle Sam as a bloated giant, bursting with gold "wrung from impoverished war countries," or, as Gil Blas of Paris suggested, "fattening off billions reeking from the blood of the slain."

An anti-American campaign is sweeping Europe—with the exception of Germany—to such an extent that Universal Service deputized a staff correspondent to investigate.

His field of inquiry covered investigation of the work done by the American Red Cross, the Hoover Commission, the American Committee for the Devastated Regions, the Joint Distribution Committee and individual Americans and American companies.

From this inquiry he found that an approximate total of one billion dollars is being spent by Americans annually in direct aid to Europe. Every man, woman and child, therefore, is contributing ten dollars annually to relief work of various descriptions in Europe, without counting foreign missions. The father of a family of five contributes, directly or indirectly, fifty dollars annually to this cause.

Be Reasonable

He had just married. He had been popular indeed, but had now resolved to settle down. His bride and he were dining out. A very lovely lady passed, gave him a look of recognition and a dangerous smile. So dangerous was the smile that the bride asked:

"Horace, who is that woman?"

Horace held up his hand.

"Be reasonable," he protested. "Don't go bothering me about who she is. I'll have trouble enough explaining to her who you are."

PROOF

A furrier was selling a coat to a woman.

"That's genuine skunk skin," he said.

"But suppose I get it wet in the rain. Won't it spoil?" she asked.

"Madam," answered the furrier, "I have only one answer. Did you ever hear of a skunk carrying an umbrella?"

Why?

NOT ENOUGH FLAGS

A certain admiral tells an amusing story of an explosive old seaman, under whom he served many years ago.

During some tactical operations one of the ships of the squadron had made some bad blunders, and at last the admiral lost his temper. He stormed about the quarter-deck and informed his hearers of his opinion of the officer in command of the erring ship.

When he paused at last for want of breath, he turned to the signaller and said, "And you can tell him that, sir."

The man scratched his head meditatively.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he ventured, "but I don't think we have enough flags for your message."

WE KNOW.

I used to think I knew I knew,
But now I must confess
The more I know I know I know
I know I know the less.

Letters to the Editor

Soldier Grateful

Editor Boston American:

I cannot let this opportunity pass to thank both your paper and Mr. McCay for his sketch in the Boston American regarding treatment of ex-service men. I think Mr. McCay's sketch expresses the feelings of a good many of the wounded ex-service men, of whom I am one. I, like a great many other ex-service men, am meeting with great difficulties in receiving justice from the officials in Washington.

When I read your editorials and see sketches, such as Mr. McCay puts forth, it makes me feel very happy to know that at least there are a few people left in this country who haven't forgotten us.

EDWARD F. HYLAND.

'Sims' Attitude

Editor Boston American:

The recent speeches of Admiral Sims seem to show conclusively his desire to uphold Great Britain at the expense of the United States. His one-sided statements upon the Irish question, his disclaiming any credit for the American Navy and his statement that he loved England because he could get any kind of a drink that he wanted for, at least fifty years to come, seem to prove beyond question that he ought to resign as an American admiral, in order to enter the British service. There with his headquarters in London he could satisfy his desire for drinks to his heart's content.

JOHN A. NICHOLLS.

Here and Now

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

HERE, in the heart of the world,
Here, in the noise and the din,
Here, where our spirits were hurled
To battle with sorrow and sin,
This is the place and the spot
For knowledge of infinite things;
This is the kingdom where Thought
Can conquer the prowess of kings.

Wait for no heavenly life,
Seek for no temple alone;
Here, in the midst of the strife,
Know what the sages have known.
See what the Perfect Ones saw—
God in the depth of each soul,
God as the light and the law,
God as beginning and goal.

Earth is one chamber of Heaven,
Death is no grander than birth.
Joy in the life that was given,
Strive for perfection on earth.
Here, in the turmoil and roar,
Show what it is to be calm;
Show how the spirit can soar
And bring back its healing and balm.

Stand not aloof nor apart,
Plunge in the thick of the fight;
There, in the street and the mart,
That is the place to do right.
Not in some cloister or cave,
Not in some kingdom above,
Here, on this side of the grave,
Here, should we labor and love.

HAPPINESS WANTING WITHOUT TRUST

By Beatrice Fairfax

"I LOVE him, but I don't trust him!" wailed Grace. "I can't live without him, so I'm going to marry him."

"You can't live with him—" I began.

"Oh, don't say that! I'll have to," she cried doggedly. "I love him so that I'd rather be miserable with him than happy with any other man. Don't tell me to give him up. Tell me how to make him care as much for me that he won't go racing after every new girl that comes along. He comes back to me. He always has. He says he always will. But I go almost crazy every time for fear he won't! I want to be happy. Tell me how."

Cannot Be Happy

And I couldn't.

There isn't any way of being happy with a man you don't trust. I said it to Grace. I say it to every other girl who writes me that she is in love with a man in whom she has no faith. All the big institutions of life are built on confidence. Business, the affairs of nations and the great institution of the home are based on nothing save when they are based on belief in the integrity of the people involved.

A man may be a bit of a philanderer and still make a woman happy if she feels in her soul that he is only a child and that he likes new toys—new excitements occasionally. I'm not retracting what I've just said. I'm merely stating that we don't have to doubt someone we love merely because he or she is a flirt and given to wandering from the real central interest of life once in a while.

Causes Doubt

But when that wandering causes doubt, when it undermines confidence, then the doubter is lacking in toleration and patience, or the "wanderer" is lacking in loyalty and stability—then marriage can't be the big, fine, satisfying thing we all crave.

Most of us have a strongly developed sense of possession. Even when we talk wisely about "freedom of the individual" and the folly of trying to own a human soul, we are still aching because the one we love isn't giving the utter devotion and showing the complete absorption we crave. And since we have to deal with human nature as it is, and not as it might be, the facts of life make it obvious that it doesn't pay to marry a man who—deservedly or not—fails to inspire faith.

Women Seek Diplomatic Positions

London, June 10.—Women will not be employed as consuls in any overseas country, says a recent decision of the Civil Service Commissioners.

"We are disappointed," said Lady Astor, commenting on the decision, "but we are continuing to press for the appointment of a woman to the British Embassy in London to advise the Ambassadors on women's questions and to keep in touch with women's organisations in each country."

CHANGE OF PARTNERS IN SOCIAL WHIRL

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

Copyright, 1921, by Premier Syndicate, Inc.

YOU remember the dance hall in the old-fashioned quadrille?

Change your partners! And then the dancers, having exchanged their mates, continue their merry career with new zest, as they go on the light fantastic toe.

Is the ancient and honorable dance of marriage there appear to be growing numbers who think they hear some master of the revels summon them to a change of partners again and then again to keep up their interest in the play of life.

Whether a plague of divorce suits, double lives, triangles and similar social diseases has suddenly broken out one knows not. What we do know is that our papers are full of them.

We shall have to get out a mid-year edition of The Social Who's Who so we shall know who's whose wife or husband.

Every time you turn your head there seems to have been a wholesale change of partners and a whole crowd of new aspirants to fame through the infamy of the divorce court, or by way of elopement, or through the tragic means of murder of your deceiving maintainer of the double establishment.

Another Angle

One week's list of headliners are Stokesee and Stillmans and Hamons. Another week there will be others. The players change, the play is always the same. No need ever to delude ourselves with the notion that throughout domestic America all goes merry as a marriage bell.

Here is another angle of this polygonal problem:

It appears that a little colony of men and women, located many miles from a railroad, in an obscure county of Utah, undertook to enliven their solitude by the practice of the doctrine of wife sacrifice. Now, don't laugh, for you know that good manners dictate the respectful attitude toward all belief and practice. It is said that these good—no, they have been declared bad—Mormons interchanged their wives!

Change your partners! But do it religiously.

Social Ideal

Professor Gudmundson began the movement on the strength of revelations which he received in person from on high.

How did he make sure of the source of his revelations? Perhaps they came from quite the opposite direction. Anyhow, to the credit of the Mormon Church, be it said, the professor and his followers were excommunicated for trying to foist into a religion the growing social habit of changing partners.

Monogamic marriage is our social ideal, to be sure, but—judging from the couple across the way, of course, not from ourselves—monogamy is not yet an achievement but only an aspiration. Each one of us—that is, every two of us—must, by every high and holy means, strive toward noblest success in embodying this ideal.
